Below zero.

A "high" area advanced from the northwest yesterday and is now central over Dakota and Minnesota. It is accompanied by extremely cold weather. The temperature of the center ranging from 34 degrees to 44 degrees below zero.

A "low" on storm center now central in the Gulf, will have a tendency to draw this cold in that direction and relieve Toledo of its greatest severity. However, the temperature will begin falling this evening and by Tuesday night reach about zero.

The weather is cloudy throughout the country except in the west, north of the fortieth parallel, where it is clear, and in the Ohio valley and lake region where it is snowing. The highest temperature in the United States is 58 degrees at Charleston; the lowest is 40 degrees below St. Vincent, Minn. Some of the extreme temperatures this morning below zero were, 44 at Winnipeg, 40 at Au Appelle, Fort Bafort, St. Vincent and Miles City, 34 at Bismarck, Moorhead and Huron, 24 at Rapid City and North Platte. The highest temperature here yesterday was 32 degrees; the lowest this morning was 26.

Local forecast for to-day and to-morrow is—flurries of snow, colder. Cold wave Tuesday.

Washington, Jan. 18.—For Ohio, Indiana and Michigan—Rain or snow; cold wave; winds becoming north.

For Wisconsin—Clearing; colder; northwest winds.

For Illinois—Clearing; colder; north winds.

"SILVER" FLINT'S REMAINS.

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 18.—All that is mortal of Silver Flint was laid away in Bellefontaine cemetery yesterday. The Chicago & Alton train bearing his remains arrived at the union depot at 7:30 yesterday morning.

The turning point in woman's life brings peculiar weaknesses and ailments. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription brings relief and cure. It is a powerful, invigorating, restorative tonic and nervine. It imparts strength to the whole system in general, and to the uterine organs and appendages in particular. "Run-down," debilitated and delicate women need it. It's a legitimate medicine—purely vegetable, perfectly harmless. It's guaranteed to give satisfaction in every case, or money refunded. Nothing else does as much. You only pay for the good you get.

Can you ask more?

As a regulator and promoter of functional action, at that critical period of change from girlhood to womanhood, "Favorite Prescription" is a perfectly safe remedial agent, and can produce only good results. It is equally efficacious and valuable in its effects when taken for those disorders and derangements incident to that later and most critical period, known as "The Change of Life."

THE REVOLUTION IS OVER.

Garza's Men Reported to Have Surrendered.

The Leader of the Gang Believed to be Near Laredo, Ready to Give Himself Up.

New York, Jan. 18.—A special to the Herald from Laredo, Tex., says it is believed there that the Garza revolution is at an end and that the armed men reported to be moving through the country are supposed to be Garza's men on their way to their homes. Garza himself is thought to be in the neighborhood of Laredo and it is the opinion of some that he may surrender at Corpus Christi.

Rumors That Matta's Note Will be Withdrawn.

Commander Evans Cables the United States Government to the Effect That Every Hour Sees Added Insult Heaped Upon the Stars and Stripes.

Valparaiso, Chile, via Galveston, Tex., Jan. 18.—Definite instructions were yesterday cabled Minister Pedro Montt at Washington directing the withdrawal of Matta's offensive note. It was presumed that this had been done before, but it is now known that the withdrawal had not been made.

TAKES THE JINGO OUT OF IT.

President Harrison's Message on the Subject Will be Very Tame.

Washington, Jan. 18.—(Special)—"President Harrison's message to congress," said an official of prominence today, "will be a disappointment to that element of our people who are clamoring for war with Chile. It will not be a 'jingo' document, and it will in no sense call upon congress to declare war against the little republic. It will be a calm, conservative state paper which will review the points in dispute between the two countries, and it will be accompanied by all the correspondence growing out of the Valpariso outrage, as well as the testimony of the Baltimore sailors taken by Judge Advocate Remy, at Vallejo. It will probably be laid before congress next Wednesday or Thursday.

"Mr. Harrison's further communication to congress will depend wholly upon the future attitude of Chile. If Chile still persists in her policy of delay and declines to disavow the responsibility of ex-Minister Matta's note, and to make proper reparation for the injury done to our sailors he will then feel justified in asking congress to declare war. Everything depends upon the developments of the next few days."

Not Expected to Apologize.

The impression still prevails in high official circles that Chile will neither apologize nor in any other way give us the satisfaction that we demand. It is argued here that the great mass of the Chilean people are ready to risk a war with the United States, and that President Montt will not dare run counter to that feeling by putting his country in the position of having been coerced by the United States. People here who are familiar with Chilean affairs say that such a course would be fatal to the Montt administration, and that the popular uprising which would follow would sweep it from power within a week.

Some of those who are closest to the president still assert that Chile is only trifling with us for the purpose of gaining time in which to make her preparations for war, and these gentlemen say that the sooner the president insists upon a peremptory reply as to her intentions in the matter the better it will be for the United States.

The announcement this morning that Admiral Walker has discovered at Montevideo 100 Whitehead torpedoes in transit to Valparaiso, coupled with the additional intelligence that three Chilean cruisers and a torpedo boat are under sealed orders to leave Valparaiso next Tuesday, has greatly intensified the war talk around the state and navy departments.

Either this or something else has given an additional impetus to the active work of war preparations, for at no time since the trouble arose has more activity been displayed by the navy officials. The wires have been kept hot between the department, the navy yards, those having contracts for government supplies and the commanding officers of vessels.

Further than that, the Miantonomoh and Newark have been ordered to join Rear Admiral Gherardi in the West Indies, and the Dolphin has been ordered ready for service with Rear Admiral Walker's fleet at Montevideo. It cannot be learned that any other movements of ships have been directed to-day, but as dispatches have been passing between the department and the three squadron commanders—Brown, Walker and Gherardi—no one need be surprised to hear of the departure of any of the vessels of their respective commands from the present locations at any time.

Plans of operations in the southern Pacific continue to be discussed by the war experts of the navy department and there is very active co-operation between the war and navy departments as to the plans and preparations for the defence of our own coasts and as to the transportation of troops to the Chilean coast.

These plans contemplate a much larger display of forces than has hitherto been deemed necessary. Instead of a fleet of 14 or 15 vessels and 10,000 troops it will be found if a declaration of war comes that the authorities have outlined a plan which will make it possible for the concentration of a fleet of 25 vessels and the transportation of 100,000 men to the seat of trouble.

Judging from the hundreds of applications that are pouring into the two departments by every day's mail, there will be no difficulty or delay in getting all the volunteers that are desired. Not only are outsiders volunteering in great numbers, but there is no little rivalry between our regular officers for service in the expected campaign. There are probably not a dozen naval officers in Washington who have not made formal application for sea service in the event of war with Chile. Many of them express preference for some particular command of service, but the vast majority offer their services in any capacity.

The Monterey, which bids fair to occupy a conspicuous figure in the prospective contest, is the choice of many officers, especially among the commanders. Commodore Wm. Folger, chief of ordnance, has applied for the command of this formidable craft, and although the department would be reluctant to take him away from his present responsible position, his request will, it is thought, be granted. The navy department is placing great reliance on this vessel and will naturally want an able and experienced commander and ordnance expert like Commodore Folger or some one of equal ability in command of her.

EVANS IS FULL OF FIGHT.

He Talks Up to Chile and Says Uncle Sam Will Back Him.

Washington, Jan. 18.—Secretary Tracy has made public the following dispatch he has received from Commander Evans, of the United States steamer Yorktown, now at Valparaiso, Chile, in regard to the Balmacedist refugees put aboard that vessel by United States Minister Egan, and the Spanish minister:

Valparaiso, Chile, Jan. 16, 1892.

Secretary of the Navy, Washington, D. C.:

The American minister informs me that the Chilean minister of foreign affairs has changed his mind about refugees now on the Yorktown, and that they may be taken out of any merchant vessel touching at a Chilean port by local authority. Arrangements had been made for all of them to sail to-day, but this change of base on the part of the Chilean minister of foreign affairs compels me to keep them, which crowds me very much. Shall I land them at Callao, Peru, or Molendo, Peru?

No steamers from here go direct to neutral territory. This unexpected act of the Chilean minister of foreign affairs is due, he states, in part to my saluting the Spanish minister when he came on board to deliver two refugees.

I have requested the American minister to say to the minister of foreign affairs that I am responsible to my own government and not to that of Chile in such matters, and that I consider his criticism offensive and I will not accept it. His action seems unworthy of the representative of a serious government.

(Signed) EVANS.

The action on the part of Senor Pereira, the Chilean minister of foreign affairs, in deciding that the refugees might be taken out of any merchant vessel touching at a Chilean port by local authority, was a great surprise to the officials in Washington. They had been led to believe from the fact that the refugees were allowed to go on board the Yorktown without molestation, that they would be permitted to leave the country without further hinderance. This belief was no doubt shared by the United States officials in Chile, for the navy department had been informed by Commander Evans that the refugees were to sail yesterday on their way to Europe. Notwithstanding this setback to their departure there is no doubt but that they will be able to get to neutral territory if the navy department can bring about the result. Secretary Tracy said to-night that he will send a reply to Commander Evans to-morrow morning, instructing him what to do in the matter. He will in all probability order that the refugees be taken to some place in neutral territory by the Yorktown, though to what particular point the secretary would not say. Neither would the secretary say what vessel he would order to Valparaiso when the Yorktown departs.

The Boston, now at Callao, Peru, is nearest to the Chilean port.

There was no ground for offense to the Chilean government in the action of Commander Evans' saluting the Spanish minister when the latter came on board to deliver the two refugees who had been under his care. The naval regulations require commanders of vessels to extend this courtesy to a visiting dignitary who may come aboard their vessel.

The lastest move of the Chilean government as voiced by its minister of foreign affairs in the present case is very unsatisfactory to such of those officials in Washington as are willing to express themselves with respect to the matter. It is felt to be a case of adding insult to injury, and additional affront to one already aggravated. Secretary Tracy evidently regretted what had occurred and seemed to think it an affront to the nation.

Neither Secretary Blaine nor Minister Montt had any news bearing on the Chilean situation for the press last night. The Chilean situation has not been improved by the developments of the past few days which have just come to light. As was stated in the dispatches a few days ago, the offensive note of Senor Matta, minister of foreign affairs in the provisional government of Chile, despite the report to the contrary, had not been then withdrawn or disavowed.

A day or two ago, however, Senor Pedro Montt, the Chilean minister, was instructed by his home government to withdraw it, but it is understood that the offer of withdrawal was accompanied by conditions or explanations by the Chilean government which were unsatisfactory to the United States.

Minister Egan, it is understood, was directed to communicate to Senor Pereira, minister of foreign affairs, the dissatisfaction of this government with the terms of withdrawal, but his interview with that official is said to have resulted in no modification of the instructions to Senor Montt, which would render them acceptable to the United States.

No confirmation can be had of the report that Minister Egan has communicated to President Harrison an intimation that the Chilean government is on the verge of dissolution and that this fact prevented the president from sending the Chilean correspondence to congress last week.

It is most improbable, although the belief that a change of administration in Chile is a matter of a short time only is held by some well-informed persons in Washington. But Mr. Egan does not communicate with President Harrison; his dispatches are to the secretary of state and such a breach as communicating with the president direct would be sufficient reason for his immediate recall. Such a dispatch as that indicated has not been received at the department, at least the officials deny all knowledge of it.

The program and work of congress this week will depend almost entirely on whether the president sends the Chilean correspondence to its respective branches. If the correspondence is sent in, and this is probable, no one can foretell what the result may be. Within 24 hours after its reception congress might declare war.

Nearly everything depends on the tone of the president's letter of transmittal, in which it is presumed he will embody some recommendations. So patriotic is the feeling among members of congress that it is reasonable to suppose that suggestions made by the president will be promptly indorsed by congress.

The correspondence would, in its line of ordinary procedure, go to the committee on foreign relations of the senate and through the committee of foreign affairs of the house, but the situation of affairs has, it is thought by many, assumed such a grave aspect that both houses will probably take up the correspondence if it is sent in, and give it immediate consideration.

The correspondence itself is said to be in such nature that it will serve to fan the warlike flame that has warmed up the patriotic feeling of congressmen.

A member of congress who has assisted the president in preparing some of it, is authority for the statement that the legislative branch of the government would declare war without delay upon hearing the correspondence read, without even a suggestion from the president.

The navy department on Saturday ordered another shipment of 20,000 pounds of guncotton from New York to the Mare Island navy yard. The explosive was placed in copper casks containing 200 pounds each, and instructions were given to expedite the shipment in every way possible.

ACTIVITY AT LEAGUE ISLAND.

The Navy Yards the Scene of Much Hustling To-Day.

Philadelphia, Jan. 18.—After years of comparative idleness the League island navy yard to-day began to show signs of life and industry. In pursuance of orders from Washington the formidable monitor Montauk will be prepared at once for service.

A force of men was put to work this morning sufficient to equip the vessel for sea in three weeks, though Capt. Coghlan, acting commandant at League island, remarked that if urgent necessity required it the Montauk could be equipped in a week.

Capt. Coghlan added that the two other monitors at League island—the Nahant and Jason—could also be gotten ready for service in a week. Though the orders from the navy department were brief and unexplained, the officers at the yard naturally construe them as bearing on the Chilean troubles.

Those Torpedoes.

Washington, Jan. 18.—Mr. George Asta-Burnaga, who was charge d'affaires of the Chilean legation in Washington during Balmaceda's administration, says that the torpedoes which Admiral Walker saw at Montevideo on their way from Europe to Chile, were ordered by Balmaceda and intended to be used against the insurgents, but were delayed in receipt.

Their existence therefore cannot be considered as evidence of warlike preparations on the part of the present Chilean government against the United States.

A DEFICIT TO BE FEARED

Holman's Resolutions Seen to be Timely.

The Treasury Watch Dog Has a Word to Say.

Uncle Sam Has All the Debts He Can Stagger Under Without Trying to Hunt Up Any More.

Washington Jan. 18.—There seems to be a general belief among members of the house that the anti-subsidy and anti-special appropriation resolutions do not mean as much as they seem. There is much fear among Illinois members that the resolutions may prevent additional appropriations for the world's fair.

Mr. Holman has been asked by a number of members whether the resolutions will cut off any appropriations for the fair. Speaking of this he said: "I cannot answer the question without giving the matter more consideration. The resolutions confines the house to expenditures for the departments. This government is one of departments and every cent that is expended ought to be through and by some department.

"If the fair can be construed to be part of the government, an appropriation for it may possibly come within the terms of the resolution, if such is the wish of the house. I shall, however, look into the statues very closely to see how far the government has allied itself to the fair, although my present opinion is that the connection is plainly within narrow limits."

"Then in your own mind, the resolution is not positively against the appropriation?"

"No, nor is it intended to defeat any proper expenditure of money. If you remember I introduced in December, 1875, and had passed a resolution similar in its phraseology to the one recently passed, except that instead of the word 'department,' I then used the words 'public service.' After the passage of this resolution congress agreed to the loan asked for the Philadelphia exposition. This, however, was a loan and not an appropriation, but the point is that the exposition was considered a part of the public service.

"At this time," continued the judge, laughing, "the argument urged for the granting of the loan was that another exposition would not be held for 100 years. I predicted then that similar expositions would be held every few years and congress would be more or less deluged with these demands. My prediction seems to have come true."

"Do you regard the navy as a legitimate object for appropriation under the resolution?"

"When the ships that are already in process of construction," replied Judge Holman, "are completed, we will have a navy twice as large as we have ever had in time of peace. During the dispute over the boundary line between Washington and British Columbia, which hung along for so many years and which really threatened war, there was no increase in the army or the navy and the expenses of the civil war show that satisfactory defences can be thrown up on short notice. The sandbags at Beaufort, S. C., for instance were much more efficacious than the costly forts built by the confederates on the Mississippi river."

"Then would you oppose an appropriation for new ships?"

"I don't know as it would go as far as that but it would certainly be well to complete some of our undertakings without laying down too many lines for new expenditures. There is not only a general sentiment throughout the country in favor of a more economical administration but we are threatened by an actual deficit.

"The sinking fund, it must be remembered, is a pledge of the American people that the public debt will be paid as quickly as possible and it should be paid each year."

"How about river and harbor improvements?"

"I am in favor of a moderate river and harbor bill, but I do not think it ought to go over $11,000,000 or $12,000,000.

SPEED ON THE WHEELS.

Record Breakers Get the Word to "Go."

Battery "D," in Chicago, to be the Scene of Much Sport During the Present Week.

Chicago, Jan. 18.—Famous professional wheelmen will try to break the Boston world's record at Battery D this week. The race, which will be a six-day, forty-eight hour, eight hours per day affair, opened at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon.

Among the riders who will compete are Howell, Wood, Ashinger, Prince, Reading, O'Flannagan and Stage. Howell, Wood and Lamb are representatives of England, the former being the acknowledged champion short distance rider of the world, while Prince, Ashinger and Reading are Americans. Stage is an Aberdeen Scotchman, and O'Flannagan hails from the Emerald Isle.

The men are in fine condition and Ashinger, the American forty-eight hour champion, promises to run the English riders off their feet, as he did in Boston. Professor Charles Ley, of Chicago, will give trick performances every afternoon and the Second regiment band will furnish the music.

The track is fast and the corners are banked and steep as a housetop, so that the riders will be able to go at a rate of twenty miles an hour. The buildings have been decorated with flags of all nations and the scoreboard is where it can be seen from all parts of the building. A bridge spans the track on the south side and this will enable spectators to cross the track in safety.

Another noted rider sent his entry in Saturday from New York—Alf Robb—who has just arrived from England and who reached Chicago this morning. He is a fast rider, as well as a man of endurance, and made the sensational ride of 232 miles without a dismount in the race at Madison Square Garden last October. The starters will be: Howell, Wood, Lamb and Robb, England; Stage, Scotland; O'Flannagan, Ireland; Schock and Ashinger, America.

WILL HAVE TO SERVE.

Rome, Jan. 18.—The pope will decline to accept the resignation of Bishop of Green Bay, Wis., the Rt. Rev. Frederick Xavier Katzer, which has been forwarded to the vatican. Bishop Katzer, who was appointed to the see July 13, 1886, was consecrated September 21 of the same year.

ANOTHER VICTIM.

Tiffin, O., Jan. 18.—The latest of the aged victims of the grip in this city is Frederick Bloom, who died at his home on East Market street Sunday noon, in his 83d year. He has four sons in this place, all of whom are well known in business circles.

RUSSIA AND FINLAND.

London, Jan. 18.—A St. Petersburg dispatch announces that the attempt to establish a zollverein between Russia and Finland has failed. Exports from the latter to the former country will therefore be subject to the increased Russian duties.

NORWALK NOTES.

Woolverton's Appointment—General Local Happenings.

Norwalk, O., Jan. 18.—(Special)—The appointment of W. B. Woolverton as postmaster of this city gives universal satisfaction. He was a soldier in the Seventy-second O. V. V. I. for four years, nine months of which he served in Andersonville and other prisons. He succeeds Dr. D. W. Vail, democrat. The doctor has made a popular and efficient postmaster, and his letter carriers and assistants have been courteous and obliging.

Conductor Harry Knapp has been placed permanently in charge of the Lake Shore Norwalk and Toledo accommodation.

GONE OUT OF BUSINESS.

Dayton, O., Jan. 18.—The announcement was made yesterday that the Firemen's Insurance company of Dayton, having decided to retire from business, has transferred all of its policies, liabilities and good will to the National Fire Insurance company of Hartford, Conn. The Firemen's has a cash capital of $250,000. Samuel Craighead is president.

TO BUY A GAS PLANT.

Findlay Citizens Want to Invest Some Cash.

An Offer to be Made in a Few Days.

The Findlay & Fort Wayne Railroad—Dow Taxes—Miscellaneous News of General Interest.

Findlay, O., Jan. 18.—(Special)—A syndicate with ample capital has been formed for the purpose of making a bonafide offer to the board of gas trustees for the purchase of the city gas plant.

It is said the company will offer to contract to furnish gas at the present rates for ten years, assume all the bonded indebtedness and leave a surplus of about $50,000 in the city treasury. The proposition will soon be made through V. H. Coons & Son, brokers of this city. A similar proposition, but not so liberal, was made some time since.

Dow Taxes.

There is a total of 189 saloons in this county paying Dow law taxes. The total amount paid the last year was $14,927.44, divided up as follows:

State fund	$2,885 49
Police	3,874 14
Municipal	4,598 20
Poor	2,985 48
Township	504 16

Quite a number of the smaller establishments put up their shutters owing to lack of patronage. There are plenty left, however, in every quarter.

A Fixed Fact.

The Findlay, Ft. Wayne & Western road, according to their previous agreement, came up with the required amount of cash and settled with the old fair ground syndicate for their right of way through the southern part of the city. The company will now make all haste to extend their line across to the T., C. & C. It is said the company expect to build over 100 miles of track east and west of this city the coming summer, reaching from Ft. Wayne, on the west, to Greenwich, Huron county, on the east, where a connection is made with the Big Four system. Some well-posted railroad men claim the new road is ultimately to be the eastern outlet for the Clover Leaf system.

Died in the West.

Patterson Taylor, a well-known citizen, was brought back to this city on Saturday and buried in Maple Grove cemetery. He died very suddenly in Indian territory. He was very wealthy in lands and money and unmarried. He was a brother of Milton Taylor, of Toledo, and Mesdames J. S. Patterson and Milton Gray, of this city, who will inherit all his property.

Wants a Divorce.

Dr. C. L. Sheppard has appled for a legal separation from his better half. The parties were married at Bad Axe, Mich., January 31, 1884, and have four children.

Another Meeting.

About 200 farmers and business men held another meeting on Saturday at the court house in the interest of the new beet sugar factory and refinery. Among the speakers were Frank H. Firmin, government sugar inspector, of Nebraska. Everything points favorably to the establishment of the new industry, the first in this section of the country, in Findlay.

ALCOHOLIC POISONING.

John Sheridan, of Perrysburg, Ends His Days.

Perrysburg, O., Jan. 18.—(Special)—On Sunday afternoon John Sheridan was seen wandering in the streets, and was taken to a barn to sober up.

Dr. Rheinfrank was called and ordered him taken home, but he died of alcoholic poisoning.

WAR ON GUTTENBURG.

New York, Jan. 18.—The war upon Guttenburg race track is to be carried on vigorously by the Law and Order league of Hudson county. Counsel have been engaged and ample funds raised to carry on the long and bitter fight that all feel must now come.

ASSAULTED BY A TRAMP.

Tiffin, Jan. 18.—An unknown tramp entered the house of Eliza H. Rauck and attempted to criminally assault her. The woman is 73 years old.

PALMER IS FOR CLEVELAND

Tariff Reform Should be the Battle Cry.

The Silver Question Is One That Will Divide the Party and Cause the Loss of the Presidency.

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 18.—United States Senator John M. Palmer, in a two-column interview with a staff correspondent of the Atlanta Journal, expresses his views pretty fully about the men and measures for the coming presidential campaign. Speaking of a free silver bill, among other things, he said:

"For my part I think it would do harm to the country, and I am opposed to it. I thing the passage of a free and unlimited coinage bill, such as Mr. Bland proposes, would be attended with very harmful results to the country and would to a considerable extent divide the party.

"The action of the party in congress, of course, foreshadows, or presages the issues of the following presidential campaign, and I am frank to say that I believe that a declaration in favor of free and unlimited coinage of silver with its present valuation would cause us to lose New York and all of the east, while it would give us no appreciable gains in the west. To state it in stronger terms, I believe it would make us lose the presidency."

The senator states that it is his opinion that the tariff is the burning question of democracy.

In speaking of democracy's standard bearer he said:

"Well, I always did have a hankering for Cleveland, and I have got it yet. If they would let us take Cleveland over in Chicago, or any where in that part of the country we could elect him. If New York will quit her foolish wrangling and will do the square thing by Cleveland, the balance of the country will stand to his support."

UNDER A SERIOUS CHARGE

A Female Fiend Placed Behind the Bars.

Children Were a Bother and She Killed Them.

A Remarkable Case Unearthed in a Peculiar Manner by the People of a Maryland County.

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 18.—Blanche Cook, a colored nurse and house girl in the family of Mr. Charles Rutledge, of Parkton, Baltimore county, has been taken to jail at Towson, charged with abducting Mr. Rutledge's 8-months' old daughter Grace, and with attempting to kill the child by throwing her into the snow.

The child was taken from its bed just after some festivities in the house. A search was immediately begun.

Some of the searchers started for a clump of woodland a hundred yards from the house.

"It's no use going up there," the girl said, "'Cause if anybody had a-gone that way I'd a-seen them when I was at the chicken house." This sounded plausible, and the searchers turned about and went down the road, thrown off the scent.

While they were looking in the wrong direction, they heard a baby crying, and the sound seemed to come from the woods. Just after this announcement Blanche was seen to dart up the hill and return in a moment.

No more sounds were heard, but not long afterward Lyttle saw footprints leading up the hill, and followed them to a corner of a fence about, 75 yards from the house.

Here he saw something moving in the snow, and going up, found little Grace, clad in her night clothes, half covered with snow, and with an old foot tub over her, covering all but her legs.

He shouted out that he had found the baby, and the first one to reach him was Blanche, who took little Grace from him, hushed her, and ran toward the house, acting in the most affectionate manner. Blanche's shoes, upon investigation, fitted to a nicety the footprints leading up the hill, and she was accused of putting the child in the snow and then attempting to murder it.

One of the company said to the girl, "And you're guilty of poisoning Stanley," referring to the little boy. The girl did not reply, and on being charged with doing so, nodded her head in assent, it is said.

The child was a bright boy of 22 months. On the morning of December 3 he was placed in the girl's care for his breakfast. A short while afterward the boy screamed, and Mrs. Rutledge found him trembling like a leaf.

The baby girl was also taken very ill, but after being nursed by Mrs. Rutledge vomited and became better. The boy had one or two spasms, and died in a short while. Blanche suggested that the children must have gotten a piece of cheese with "rough on rats" on it that had been placed back in a corner on a cupboard shelf. Crumbs of the cheese were afterward found under the lounge, on which the box had been placed. Mr. Rutledge said that Stanley could not have gotten the cheese by himself, nor could he have thrown the crumbs where they were found.

The girl is now charged with poisoning the dead boy.

SOLDIERS' WIDOWS HOME.

Columbus, Jan. 18.—(Special)—Last winter the legislature appropriated $25,000 to erect a cottage at the National Woman's Relief Corps Home, located at Madison, Lake county.

Having secured this a large number of Christian women and their friends have induced a senator to prepare a bill appropriating money enough to erect a soldiers' widows home in the northern part of the state.

If the temper of the house finance committee is judged rightly, it can be safely said that the object will not succeed this winter.

SUICIDE WHILE INSANE.

LABOR STATISTICS.

Annual Report of Commissioner McBride.

Important Topics of General Interest Receive Attention—The Free Employment Agencies.

Columbus, Jan. 18.—Hon. John McBride, commissioner of the bureau of labor statistics, has submitted to the governor his annual report for 1891. The report, which is very comprehensive, is divided into six parts.

Part 1 treats upon the operation of free employment offices, and shows that during the year the five offices had 34,371 applications from persons desiring employment, and of this number 21,475 were males and 12,914 females. The total number of employes wanted by employers was 23,208, and of this number 9,695 were males and 13,513 were females. The total number of persons securing employment through the offices was 15,525, and of this number 6,967 were males and 8,558 were females. The amount of "help wanted" was 67.52 per cent. of the "situations wanted." The "positions secured" was 66.9 per cent. of "help wanted, while the "positions secured" was 52.2 per cent. of the "situations wanted."

Part 2 deals with mines and mining, showing that 21,593 employes produced 11,022,137 1-2 tons of coal of all grades, having a value on board of cars at the mines of $9,965,200.47.

Part 3 gives the relations of capital and labor in 1,976 miscellaneous industrial establishments, showing that the capital invested was $143,803,911, while the material used cost $121,839,816. Th value of product amounted to $210,710,732, and $33,540,794 was paid in salary and wages to 105,333 employes, who averaged 294 days, with an average of 9.7 hours per day during the year.

Part 4 contains subject matter similar to part 3, so far as it relates to 46 industries of the state.

Parts 5 and 6 are devoted to male and female employes over 16 years of age and those under 16 years of age, and gives, by occupations, the annual, daily and hourly earnings, together with the time they worked in days and hours.

RAZED BY NATURAL GAS.

Terrible Explosion at Lancaster, Ohio.

Ex-Judge Brazee's House in Ruins.

Miraculous Escape of the Inmates—The Judge Blown Out of His Residence and Across the Street—Much Damage Done.

Lancaster, O., Jan. 18.—At 6.30 this morning occurred the most disastrous explosion of natural gas in the history of natural gas here.

The residence of ex-Judge John S. Brazee, a two-story brick on North Columbus street, was leveled to the ground.

Mrs. Brazee, four grown children and the servant were in bed at the time, Judge Brazee being the only occupant stirring. He was blown 60 feet across the street, where he was found unconscious and bleeding from severe wounds about the head, and his real condition is not known.

It seems almost a miracle that none of the sleeping occupants of the house were seriously injured. The walls fell outward and this probably saved their lives. Windows were broken for several squares around, and the organ in an adjoining church was ruined.

The shock was felt for miles around. A leak in a pipe, it is supposed, filled the cellar and library with gas, which was ignited from the grate. The house and its contents are ruined.

ARE PULLING TOGETHER.

Robison and Lang Are Friends Once More.

An Agreement Reached on the Overhead Wire System That Will Gratify the Public.

An article of agreement was signed this morning between the Robison Electric Street Railway company and the Consolidated whereby they dismiss all wire suits and join in the construction of all overhead material.

The two companies will connect so that both roads can use the same wires jointly, one party feeding one curve and vice versa, and that under the agreement the Consolidated feed all curves and intersections from Ontario street to Summit and from Monroe to Perry street bridge, and on Jefferson at St. Clair and Superior street crossings, and the Robisons feed the crossings on Adams street and at Adams and Summit and Jefferson and Summit.

By the agreement the Consolidated is to use the Robison span wires and the Robisons to use the Consolidated span wires and each will use the other's poles jointly.

This will obviate to a large extent the breaks in circuits and facilitate rapid transit.

On Cherry street it is agreed to use each other's tracks, as well as on Washington street and Nebraska avenue.

All curves and crossings going off of one street on to another, are to be paid for jointly.

The public will be heartily glad to learn that the two companies are pulling together so far as wires are concerned, and hope to soon see the day when rapid transit will be here in all that the word implies.

MANY ARE SICK.

DEATH OF MRS W. D. HILL.

Defiance, O., Jan. 18.—(Special)—Mrs. W. D. Hill, wife of ex-Congressman Hill, died at the family residence in this city Saturday afternoon, after a lingering illness. She was estimable lady, very popular in this community and her death is universally regretted. Funeral Tuesday.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS.

An even dozen drunks graced the police court docket this morning.

Judge Lemmon to-day granted a divorce to Kate Leroux from Noah Leroux.

The flag on the Produce Exchange building is at half-mast in memory of Vincent Hamilton.

In common pleas court to-day Judge Harmon dismissed the petition in error of William Brown against the city.

The decennial board of equalization convened this morning, sized up the pile of complaints, and adjourned without action.

The J. P. Welch against whom his wife has filed action for divorce is not Officer J. P. Welch, of the Toledo police force.

The Toledo Isabella Reading circle meets to-morrow afternoon at 4 o'clock, with Mrs. D. C. Shaw, 2038 Parkwood avenue.

Margaret Kruse, who was tried for keeping a house of ill-fame and on whose case the jury disagreed, will be obliged to stand a new trial, and it has been set for the 22d.

Judge Harmon to-day, in the case of Samuel G. McCullough against Joshua R. Seney, granted leave to the defendant to withdraw the answer of Joshua R. Seney and file the answer of the trustee.

In police court this morning Charles Smith was fined $10 and costs and 30 days for being a suspicious person, but the execution of sentence was suspended in order to give him a chance to leave the city.

A proposition is being prepared for submission to the council to-night from the gas trustees, asking that bonds be issued in place of certificates of indebtedness which are now out. The amount is said to be $345,000.

J. E. Clark was arrested Saturday night and he had on his person about a dozen pairs of scissors and could give no good account of himself. He will have a hearing in police court to-morrow morning on the charge of being a suspicious person.

"Work and Wages, a Study of Facts," is the title of the free lecture in Memorial hall annex this evening. Every one is invited, and many of those who heard Mr. Bliss at Trinity and Grace churches will avail themselves of this opportunity to hear him again.

We are keeping up our great special sale of MUSLIN UNDERWEAR

LASALLE & KOCH.

FIRE SCARE.

The fire department was called to 1218 Madison street yesterday afternoon, the residence of Mr. Adolph Feiss. Mrs. Feiss with other ladies was sitting near the gas grate when a fearful roaring startled them all to their feet and balls of fire came rolling down the chimney and out onto the floor and rugs about the grate. The rugs were rolled up and fire smothered. The fire on the roof was quickly extinguished by the chemical. If the family had been absent the elegant interior, at least, would have been ruined. Moral from this, do not leave gas burning in an open grate when you go out.

Robert Louis Stevenson said some years ago: "Certainly, if I could help it, I would never marry a woman who did something better than much of her writing." But Mrs. Stevenson could surely husband's recent South Sea writing.

THE DAY NURSERY.

Fortnightly Meeting—Report of Work Done—Business Transacted.

The fortnightly meeeting of this circle of the King's Daughters was held at the nursery Saturday afternoon. The report of the treasurer showed a balance of funds in hand of $125.13; receipts of the fortnight, $9.60; expenditures $22.05.

Matron Merchant's report showed the largest number of children cared for any one day was nine; total days attendance during the fortnight, 55.

The bill for natural gas was presented, and the circle informed that the natural gas trustees refused to furnish the gas free, as the law provides. Mrs. W. W. Bolles reported, for the house committee, visiting the nursery and finding both the attendants and the babies were in danger of getting cold, on account of the insufficiency of the gas fuel furnished. In consequence she had bought wood and coal for the nursery. The action was indorsed, and the gas bill ordered paid. Some other arrangement for fuel besides depending on the city gas line will be made at once.

Mrs. H. M. Bacon and Mrs. W. S. Hubbell reported visiting "Little Charley" at the infirmary farm, and the circle, after hearing what is his physical condition, decided he could not be taken into the nursery. In its present small quarters it would be impossible to care for ailing children at the nursery, nor is that the purpose for which it was established. Little Charley's case is a very sorrowful one, and each member of the circle expressed a desire to do something for him, individually. It would seem in the great state of Ohio, and in this prosperous municipality, there must be some place where the little waif is entitled to a home in which he can receive mental training. His physical welfare is well looked after at the farm, but his future should be provided for in a way that will not leave him always a charge on the public.

The death of Mr. Vincent Hamilton was reported, and Secretary Waldron was instructed to convey to Mrs. Hamilton the condolences of the circle, of which she is a member.

A committee of three, consisting of Mrs. W. W. Bolles, Mrs. A. M. Woolson and Mrs. A. P. Stevens, was appointed to draw up rules regulating the admission and care of the children, and some other details.

An invitation was received from the board of the free kindergarten at the Adams Street mission to send the day nursery children there who are old enough to attend. On motion the matron was instructed to take such children to the school, daily, if their mothers do not object.

On motion a work committee was appointed, Mrs. W. W. Bolles, chairman. This committee will buy and have made up such clothing as the children will need to wear while at the nursery and in the school.

PRETTY GOOD SEND-OFF.

The Upper Sandusky Union has the following to say of a recent acquisition to Toledo:

"Hon. James T. Close has resigned his position of official stenographer of the second sub-division of the tenth judicial district of Ohio, and gone to Toledo, where he has formed a business connection with Messrs. Doyle, Scott & Lewis, a leading law firm of that city. We regret exceedingly to lose the genial presence of our worthy and talented young citizen, and trust he will find his promotion agreeable and attended with the largest measure of success. Mr. Close is a gentleman of acknowledged ability, well read in the law, and a very ready and effective speaker. During his residence in this city he won the esteem and good will of our people. He served six years as prosecuting attorney of this county, and made a record to which his friends can refer with pride. As a law stenographer he enjoys an enviable state reputation, and with his other accomplishments, which are many and rare, the law firm of Messrs. Doyle, Scott & Lewis are indeed fortunate in securing his valuable services."

TOLEDO BOY MURDERED.

TIRED OF FREEDOM.

Frederick Roland, a tramp, gave himself up to the Toledo police last week, saying that he was wanted in Indianapolis for forgery. Captain Quigley, of that city arrived here yesterday and took the man back. He is wanted for forging a check for $18 on the Mutual Life Insurance Co.

WILL GO BACK.

A colored man named George Brown was arrested last Friday by Detective Kruse. Brown is a fugitive from justice, having escaped from the Warren county jail at Monmouth, Ill., last September. Sheriff Turnbull, of that place, is on his way to Toledo to take the man back.

WEDDED TO-MORROW.

To-morrow morning at St. Joseph's church, corner Locust and Erie streets, at 8 o'clock high mass, Miss Maggie Burt and Mr. Ed Banker will be joined in the holy bonds of matrimony. The young couple will begin housekeeping at once at their new home, 727 Walnut street. Both have hosts of friends who tender good wishes.

CALVIN BRONSON'S FUNERAL.

The funeral of the late Calvin Bronson took place this afternoon at 2 o'clock from his residence, 709 Madison street, Rev. W. W. Williams, officiating. The remains were placed in the vault at Forest cemetery. The pall bearers were: Messrs. W. Gates, C. Bateman, R. S. Arris, Mars Nearing, G. H. Ketcham, H. Merrill, S. Blanchard and J. W. Kelsey.

HEAVY SENTENCE.

Michael Steinert, a butcher, living at 523 East Woodruff avenue, was arraigned in police court on a charge of neglecting his children. He pleaded guilty and was sentenced to three months in the work house and to pay the costs in the case. He was given until to-morrow, however, to file a bond in the sum of $1,000, to support his children. If he obtains this the sentence of the court will not go into effect.

STATIONARY ENGINEERS.

This association held its regular meeting in Turley's hall Saturday night, initiating one new member. The principal theme for discussion was the licensing of stationary engineers. This measure of public safety is good for the trade also, and all good engineers desire to see it enacted into law. A bill failed of passage at Columbus last winter, and organized labor will back the engineers up in trying to get another and better bill through this year.

STOLE A WEIGHT.

Charles Treadwell, a colored man, was arrested yesterday for stealing a safety valve from Arbuckle & Ryan, which he had sold at a junk shop. In police court this morning he was fined $20 and costs, and 30 days. On the stand Treadwell denied ever having the weight, in the face of evidence from several reputable witnesses. In sentencing the man Judge Sala recommended that the prosecutor bring action for perjury.

THE LATE PROF. M'CARTHY.

The friends of Prof. John McCarthy, principal of St. Patrick's school, were pained to learn of his death, which occurred Saturday. Mr. McCarthy was taken with the grippe a short time ago, which was followed by pneumonia. He was 51 years of age, and had taught in Toledo for some years. He was an excellent gentleman, a kind teacher and an industrious scholar, and his demise will be mourned by many. The funeral will occur to-morrow morning at 9 o'clock at St. Patrick's church.

W. E. CAWOOD'S FATHER.

This morning's Cleveland Plain Dealer has the following relative to the death of Jacob Cawood. He was the father of Mr. W. E. Cawood, of this city, who has gone to attend the funeral:

"In the death of Jacob Cawood Cleveland loses another old citizen. As one of the Argonauts who failed to realize in California the golden Mecca of their dreams he returned east with his little family, settling in Cleveland in '49, and his name is a familiar one to the old timers. Deceased was a man of generous nature, with many estimable traits of character, and those who knew him well learn of his death with regret. Jacob Cawood died Saturday at the family home on St. Clair street, at the advanced age of eighty years."

NO JOINT SESSION TO-NIGHT.

A joint session of the council boards will not be held to-night, consequently the confirmation of Reynold Yiot as gas trustee still remains unsettled. The matter rests where it did some weeks ago. Mayor Emmick sent in the name, the city dads refused to consider it, and the mayor insists that action shall be taken before another nomination is made. The councilmen are on their dignity, so is the mayor, and as a result the nominee is hung up, so to speak. Both sides are waiting for a break, which cometh not. An effort has been made to hold a session, but members refuse to sign a call. The only pleasant thing about the scrap is the fact that the city is saving the salary of a trustee while the fight goes on, and no interest appears to be suffering.

DEATH OF MRS. JOHN D. LELAND.

At 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon occurred the death of Mrs. John D. Leland. Mrs. Leland has been failing in health for the past two years, and has, for a year, been an invalid, consumption developing rapidly. Mrs. Leland returned from California about two weeks ago without being benefited by the change. She was a sweet and loving character, a Christian woman, ever ready to lend a helping hand, and her death will be mourned by many. The funeral will occur to-morrow morning at 10 o'clock from the residence of Mr. George Allen, 441 Twelfth street. Her husband, Mr. John Leland, of the firm of Leland, Smith & Co., two children, Harry and John, her father, who resides in Riverside, Cal., Mrs. Walter Hunter and Mrs. George H. Allen, sisters, and brother, Mr. Chas. E. Russell, survive her, and have the heartfelt sympathy of a host of friends in their bereavement.

AFFINITY.

Strange my past was unaware
Of thy presence anywhere;
That we met as strangers meet,
Moving with reluctant feet
Toward this passion new and sweet.

Loved so late, can years atone
For the past we lived alone?
Hands and lips have touched and wed,
Hands and lips will soon be dead,
Grasses waving overhead.

Yet, O Love, thou wast and art
And shall be a changeless part
Of thy being. Glad and free
Is our nature's harmony,
As when perfect chords agree.

Past and future both are here
Folded in the present, dear,
Like a rose that parteth wide
Petals in the Summer-tide
When the bud is glorified.

Life was hidden in its breast
Ere the fragrant lips confess;
Life remaineth—though it lie
In the dust—eternally,
Beauty was not born to die.

When we leave the shadow-land,
Passing outward hand in hand,
Into Summer and the sun,
Where all restlessness is done
And the perfect peace begun—

Will it matter that the years
Dealt us doubt and pain and tears?
Death can only set us free;
Wide and sweet to me and thee
Opens our eternity.

AN INDIAN ITS VICTIM.

The Last Brave of the Shinnecocks Dies of the Grip.

William Bunn, the last full-blooded Indian of the Shinnecock reservation, died in his little cabin on the borders of the once happy hunting grounds of his tribe in the Shinnecock Hills, L. I., yesterday. The old brave had been stricken with grip, complicated with pneumonia.

Bunn was the direct descendant of the ruling family in the Shinnecock tribe. He always maintained his independence and kept alive the traditions of his forefathers. He was among the leaders of the remnant of his race who sought by an appeal to the president to have the Shinnecock Hills restored to the reservation. He believed the hills had been wrested from them unlawfully by the white man.

When the town of Southampton celebrated the two hundred and fortieth anniversary of its settlement in June, 1890, Bunn was the only member of the tribe of Indians on the island who could construct a wigwam. He answered the appeal of the committee and built a typical Indian lodge in the center of the village, and, at the celebration he and his cousin were present, making their headquarters in the wigwam as the last representatives of the once powerful race.

The Shinnecock Indians were good sailors. Many of them became whalemen. Bunn had made several successful voyages on whaling ships sailing out of Sag Harbor. The tribe was nearly depleted a few years ago by the sudden breaking up of the steamer Circasian, stranded on the beach off Southampton. The Indians were employed by the wreckers on board the steamer, when a storm broke connections with the shore and left them to perish within sight of their friends.—New York World.

WHAT STOUT WOMEN SHOULD KNOW.

That they have no business to wear tailor made dresses. Such close fitting costumes bring into prominence every pound of superfluous flesh they have.

That their arms must never be uncovered above the elbow, no matter what the fashion be. It is no reason because one has a pair of hams for shoulders that all the world should know it.

That ruching about the neck or flowers and ribbons at the waist increase a diameter where it is already too large; therefore such things are not wanted.

That necklaces, particularly big pearls, and heavy earrings, should be dispensed with, no matter how fine their quality, and only a few rings to be worn as jewels.

That a pair of fat hands do not look any better for being squeezed into gloves which are too small. But the contrary.

That short basques make them ridiculous.

That the best thing they can do with their hair is to dress it on the top of the head, because a low coiffure is invariably unbecoming.

In short, that there is no sense in a jellyfish trying to wear what is becoming to a lean and hungry mackerel.—New York Herald.

HER MANIA FOR BARGAINS.

There was a curious instance of the extremes to which a bargain fiend may be carried revealed by the death of a woman in one of the suburbs a few days ago. Among her belongings were found about 50 pieces of dress goods that had never been made up, some of them, judging from their styles, a score of years old. Of calico and other wrappers there were nearly three times as many, and a huge accumulation of wearing apparel of all sorts was also found.

A still greater surprise to the family was the discovery of not less than 500 pairs of old stockings, all carefully darned and put away. All the hosiery that the household had had, and, as they supposed, worn out years ago, was there, as carefully mended and packed away as though they had belonged to a saint.

The climax was the unearthing of a great pile of empty tomato cans, which the conscientious old soul had stowed away for some purpose known only to herself.

Her family knew that she had a mania for bargains, and would buy anything and everything if she thought it was cheap, but the inventory of her purchases was a genuine revelation even to them. —Boston Herald.

THE AVERAGE WOMAN.

How many who use the term "average woman" know what it implies? Physically it means that she weighs about 117 pounds, and that, if an American, she is somewhat taller than five feet one inch. Observations taken by the French academy relative to the average height of 1,107 Frenchwomen, without shoes, show it to be that much. Dr. Sargeant, from 1,835 observations, concludes that the American woman is nearly two inches taller than the average daughter of France; and Dr. Galton, an Englishman, in 770 measurements, found that the women of Great Britain are the tallest of the three, they exceeding Miss Columbia by fully half an inch. In the matter of weight, though American femininity is slightly ahead, though the figures are not given.

Worth His Worth in Gold.

Worth his weight in gold" is high praise, whether it comes "from Sir Hubert Stanley" or not. It is, however, not less than is due to the Maharajah of Benares—at least from the point of view of the Brahmin students at Kourh. This distinguished personage, having gone through the ancient oriental custom of weighing himself at Muttra in the scale against gold pieces—stout potentates ought to be at a premium in India—has resolved to devote 30,000 rupees of the counterbalancing precious metal to raising the middle school at Kourh in the family domains to a high school for the benefit of Brahmin students. Formerly, it is said, the money would have been distributed outright among the priests and mendicants on the spot.—London Daily News.

SENSIBLE PRESCRIPTION.

There is nothing better for an acidulous stomach than a little carbonate of magnesium. Your druggist will give you an inch cube of it. We recommend it to religious editors, to be taken before writing upon burning theological questions. What is called "heart-burn" is only gastric acid. Any alkaline substance will do—a bit of chalk; a glass of water with a pinch of wood ashes in it; just the tip of a teaspoonful of soda, which you will find in a glass jar in the kitchen cupboard—dilute it in a glass of water. There is a good deal of theological acrimony, just now, for which the Christmas mince pie is responsible.—Interior.

A SENSIBLE CHOICE.

A sister of the late king of Spain consented to mingle her proud Castilian blood with that of the people by marrying a doctor of medicine who had not a solitary handle to his name. When the courtiers heard of the Infanta's choice they turned up the whites of their eyes to the sky like ducks in a thunder-storm at the bare notion of this superb patrician lily giving herself to a husband belonging to the professional classes. The doctor in question is well provided for mentally and physically, and his spouse is evidently proud of him, for when she was twitted with marrying an untitled individual she said: "I preferred a man without a title to a title without a man."

SCOLDING WIVES.

On a certain occasion a clergyman, who was preaching to a refined audience on the pangs of a guilty conscience, made use of the following familiar simile: "An evil conscience is like a scolding wife." But he did not stop there. He continued to draw out every possible thread of his illustration to its full length. "A scolding wife, my brethren, will not let you rest at home or abroad, at dinner or at supper, in bed or even out of bed! Her litigious temper and loud tongue (which is worse than thunder to the wine-cask) take all the juices and savoriness out of the ragouts you eat; all the sugar and sweetness out of the coffee you drink. Whether you go forth on foot or on horseback, or in a coach drawn by four galloping horses, is all one; she is always at your skirts, following you whithersoever you go."

THE SOUNDS OF COLOR.

A beam of sunlight is made to pass through a prism, so as to produce the solar spectrum or rainbow. A disk, having slits or openings in it, is made to revolve and the colored light of the rainbow is made to break through it and fall on silk, wood or other material in a glass vessel. As the colored light falls upon it sounds will be given by the different parts of the spectrum, and there will be silence in other parts. If the vessel contains red worsted and the green light flashes upon it loud sounds will be given. Only feeble sounds will be heard when the blue parts of the rainbow fall upon the vessel.

Dyspepsia

Makes the lives of many people miserable, causing distress after eating, sour stomach, sick headache, heartburn, loss of appetite, a faint, "all gone" feeling, bad taste, coated tongue, and irregularity of the bowels. Dyspepsia does not get well of itself. It requires careful attention, and a remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which acts gently, yet efficiently. It tones the stomach, regulates the digestion, creates a good appetite, banishes headache, and refreshes the mind.

Distress After Eating Sick Headache Heartburn Sour Stomach

"I have been troubled with dyspepsia. I had but little appetite, and what I did eat distressed me, or did me little good. After eating I would have a faint or tired, all-gone feeling, as though I had not eaten anything. My trouble was aggravated by my business, painting. Last spring I took Hood's Sarsaparilla, which did me an immense amount of good. It gave me an appetite, and my food relished and satisfied the craving I had previously experienced." GEORGE A. GUILIELMUS REX.

The folks who lived in Shakspeare's day
And saw that gentle figure pass
By London Bridge, his frequent way—
They little knew what man he was.

The pointed beard, the courteous mien,
The equal port to high and low,
All this they saw or might have seen—
But not the light behind the brow!

The doublet's modest gray or brown,
The slender sword-hilt's plain device,
What sign had these for prince or clown?
Few turned, or none, to scan him twice.

Yet 'twas the king of England's kings!
The rest, with all their pomps and trains,
Are moldered, half-remembered things—
'Tis he alone that lives and reigns!

A KICKER.

The tall muscular ostrich at the Zoo is quite a pugilist with his feet and is notoriously fond of "kicking" whenever anything happens to displease him. His meals are always brought to him in a large bucket, which is set down in the middle of the cage and left for his pleasure. The other day Milord Ostrich stuck his head into the bucket and withdrew it quickly with a seemingly proud sniff of disdain. Instantly his right leg was drawn up close to his tail feathers and discharged like lightning toward the poor dinner. When Keeper Byrne peeped through the wires an hour later the dismembered fragments of the bucket were scattered around the cage, and one side of the partition was plastered with the debris of the noon-day repast.—Philadelphia Record.

A COLUMN OF SMILES

A Story of Artemus Ward.

William Winter says that one evening he and Artemus had been attending a gathering of literary friends, and about 3 o'clock in the morning they started down Broadway on their way home. When they reached the old Jones house, now demolished, Artemus insisted upon entering. They found a solitary night clerk there, who was barely able to awake sufficiently to receive them.

Ward said, "Is this the Jones house?" and he said it very solemnly, and when the clerk informed him that it was, Ward, straightening himself up and assuming a manner of grave importance and mystery, said:

"First of all I want a bottle of gin. Can it be negotiated for?"

The clerk produced it, and then Ward, still maintaining his manner of heavy mystery, said to the clerk, "Is the proprietor in?" Yes, he was in, but abed. "It is very important that I see him," continued Ward, "In fact, of the utmost importance."

So the clerk went off to arouse the proprietor, who some 10 minutes later came down in his night shirt, pair of trousers and slippers over his stockingless feet. Ward seized him impressively by the hand, and then, with the manner of great mystery, led the astonished Jones to a corner, and bending to his ear said in tones which would have done Edwin Forrest credit, "Sir, I have called to impress upon you the sublime and awful fact that eternal vigilance is the price of liberty. Let these words sink deep into your heart, sir!"

Jones seemed overcome with astonishment, so that he was not angry, and Winter and Ward walked out of the hotel arm in arm. Just as they reached the sidewalk Ward turned back and handed Jones his card. Years after, when Mr. Winter happened to be at Jones' place, he saw the card framed and hung up conspicuously in the office.

A Great Slide.

The children's toboggan slide is quite an institution in a certain nursery. It is an old ironing-board, a good wide one, and when its end is tipped up on a chair it furnishes all kinds of amusement to its small owners.

The other day the children discovered a new joy in the ironing-board. They placed it flat upon the floor. Then they smuggled a piece of soap from the bath room and soaped the board well from end to end. It made a famous slide.

The three boys and the girl, who is the wildest boy of the four, gave themselves plenty of room to run, and the board was long enough to make a good slide.

One after another they ran. The chase grew exciting. Finally Alice, taking her turn, came with a rush down the hall and across the board. The impetus was too much. Her heels flew up and she came down, very hard.

She gathered herself together with a bewildered look on her face. Then she stood up slowly.

"Dear me!" she said. "I didn't know soap was so effective!"—New York World.

Anecdotes of Children.

The great Emerson was once completely "stumped" by a village urchin in Concord. The philosopher asked him the familiar questions of what the surface of the earth consists, and was promptly answered, "Land and water." Then that the fact might be impressed upon the boy's mind, Emerson varied the question slightly, inquiring, "What do land and water make?" to which came the quick reply, "Mud."

A very bright remark has been credited to the late Earl of Beaconsfield. When quite young he heard a clever woman compliment an ignorant man on his good sense. "I don't wonder," said young Disraeli, quick as a flash, "at his possessing a large stock of good sense; he never spends any."

The African explorer, Paul B. du Chaillu, was lately explaining to a very small boy the various inconveniences of life in the equatorial forest. "It's dreadful, Dickie," said he, "to think that there are benighted tribes who do not know what soap is, and who do not wash from one year's end to the other." Dickie was pensive for a moment; then, "I wish," said he, "I was a 'nighted tribe."

Bishop Phillips Brooks confesses that as a child he had an exceedingly "sweet tooth." One day his mother said to him: "Phillips, I find that you have been taking more sugar than I gave you." Yes, mamma," the youngster owned up, "I've been making believe there was another little boy spending the day with me."—Once a Week.

An Innocent Visitor.

"Where is the Young Men's Christian institute?" asked a clerical looking man who had just come over the big bridge from Brooklyn, as he stood hesitatingly in Park row, says the New York Tribune. "De Young Men's Christian istoot?" answered a tough looking longshoreman with a red nose and a black eye. "Why, dat's up de Bowery." "Yes, I was told it was in the Bowery," replied the stranger. "But can you tell me just where?" "Cert," ejaculated the longshoreman. "I don't know the number, but I can put yer right onto it. You know where Steve Brodie's saloon is, don't you? Well——" "No, I don't," said the stranger. "What, don't you know Steve Brodie's?" in tones of disgust. "De bridge jumper?" "Never heard of him." "Well, you know where Kerrigan's dive is? It's not far from dat as——" "Excuse me, sir; I don't know Kerrigan's dive either." "Say, mister, where was yer born, anyway? Perhaps you don't even know where Skinny Mike's dime beauty show is, den?" "No." "Nor Chin Wah's opium joint?" "I must seem very ignorant to you." "Plain, ordinary ignorance an't in it wid yer at all, mister. If yer don't know dem places yer hadn't better be out alone in New York. I can't direct yer to de instoot if yer don't know de commonest landmarks. You'd better hire a detective to guide yer round and keep yer out o' de Bowery altogedder."

ANIMALS IN COURT.

Summoned, Tried, Convicted and Executed.

A Forgotten Bit of Lega History Resurrected.

Pigs in Prison—Caterpillars Excommunicated—And These Extraordinary Proceedings Occurred in France and England From the Twelfth to the Eighteenth Century.

In the December number of "Our Animal Friends" some queer chapters of ancient history are viewed by Edmund Collins, describing the trials of animals in courts of law. Most readers supposed the "trying" of the pig as it is understood to-day was all the process of the kind he was ever subjected to. The paper is of sufficient interest to quote entire.

I have recently discovered some very interesting old records concerning the trials of animals for all sorts of offences. These documents are authentic, and in most cases are official records, and they show the curious views entertained respecting animals by the most enlightened portions of Christendom from the beginning of the twelfth century down to 1744.

The right to try animals was founded on the Jewish law laid down in Exodus xxi.28: "If an ox gore a man or woman that they die, then the ox shall be surely stoned, and his flesh shall not be eaten; but the owner of the ox shall be quit." There are among the official records in the French courts elaborate accounts of ninety-two legal processes against animals extending from 1120 to 1744, when the last trial and execution, that of a cow, took place. There are also many records of similar trials in the English court, showing that animals came before the judgment seat, were arraigned, tried, and sentenced with all the formality and dignity observed in dealing with human beings.

But these trials were exceedingly complicated, and gave rise to vast discussions between civil court authorities and authorities on canonical law. For example, all the domestic animals were tried in the civil courts, but wild animals of a noxious description, such as rats, caterpillars, mice, locusts, and such like, were arraigned before ecclesiastical tribunals. In the "Essais historiques sur Paris," St. Foix points out that the Bishop of Laon first took judicial action against noxious animals by pronouncing an injunction and anathema against field-mice and caterpillars, because it had been reported to him that these creatures were working great ravages among the crops and sorely distressing the peasants. Especial justification for ecclesiastical proceedings against the caterpillars and the field-mice was argued by the bishop in this way: As God cursed the serpent, David the mountains of Gilboa, and our Saviour the barren fig-tree, so, in like manner, the Church had full power and authority to exorcise, anathematize, and excommunicate all animals and inanimate things. But as the lower animals, being created before man, were the elder-born and first heirs of the earth, as God blessed them and gave them every "green herb for meat," as they were provided for in the ark, and entitled to the privileges of the Sabbath, they must be treated with the greatest clemency consistent with justice. Some learned canonists, however, called in question the authority of the Church to anathematize these creatures of God which she did not undertake to baptize, and endeavored to make a strong point by citing the example of the archangel Michael, who, when contending with Satan for the body of Moses, "did not make a railing accusation against the 'old serpent,' but left it to the Lord to rebuke him."

Men like Chasseneuz, who were strong supporters of ecclesiastical jurisdiction, held that everything that exists was created for man's use and benefit; that we should not misinterpret God's providence by tolerating any creatures that rendered themselves in any way harmful to man, and he wound up his learned thesis by saying: "Religion permits snares to be laid for birds and other animals and the best of all nets is the lightning of anathematization."

So it came to pass that the bishops and other dignitaries of the Church, acting, as they believed, under the sacred sanction of the Scriptures, solemnly met many times in the year, but most frequently in harvest season, and then and there deliberately tried all offenders of the animal kingdom against which complaints had been made. In the civil courts there was hardly a week in any large town in France that one or more domestic animals were not brought before the bar to answer through counsel to the charges preferred against them. The same practice was adopted for a time in the English courts. But the most interesting part of it all is the methods adopted in trying the animals.

When locusts, rats, field-mice, or any other creatures harassed the peasantry they first prayed that God would rid them of the nuisance; but if their prayers were unanswered they at once came to the nearest town where there was a bishop, laid the case before him, and besought him to take action in the matter. The bishop, when satisfied that their representations were correct, at once appointed a number of experts to go out and examine the ravaged districts. If these experts reported that crops or other property had been seriously injured by these creatures, then the bishop at once instituted proceedings against them. His first step was to appoint an advocate, who was usually an ecclesiastic well versed in canon law, his duty being to defend the animal. A regular legal document was next made out calling upon him to show cause why the defendants should not be summoned, and if he could not show good cause to the court, the insect, animal, or whatever it was, was then cited three times to appear before the tribunal. If they did not appear after the third citation, judgment was given against them by default.

The court then issued an admonition, warning the animals to leave the district within a certain time, under penalty of adjuration; and if they did not disappear on or before the period appointed, the exorcism was with all due solemnity pronounced. The courts, however, by every available reason for delay, evaded the last extremity of pronouncing the exorcism, probably lest the animals should neglect to pay attention to it. Indeed, it is actually recorded that in some instances the noxious animal did not "wither off the face of the earth" after being anathematized. This the Church lawyers attributed neither to the injustice of the sentence nor want of power of the court, but to the malevolent antagonism of Satan, who, as in the case of Job, is at times permitted to tempt and annoy mankind.

There is to be found in the "Memories de la Societe Royale Academique de Savoie," a curious account of proceedings instituted in 1587 against a beetle that committed great destruction in the vineyards of St. Julien. Forty-two years before the same beetle had appeared in millions, devouring everything that was green in the march; so the inhabitants applied to the bishop to take proceedings against them. They were cited to appear, and the usual formalities were proceeded with; but, before judgment was pronounced, strange to say, disappeared. The paysans believed that the insects were in dread of being anathematized, and for this reason had left the country. High masses were chanted and Te Deums sung in thanks for the deliverance, and a delegation waited on the archbishop through whose action the pests had gone away. However, the descendants of the frightened beetles forty-two years later, as I have said, came back and overran the meadows and vineyards, spreading desolation everywhere.

The inhabitants, all of whom knew about the former incursion, immediately made complaint to the vicar-general of the Bishop of Maurienne, who, without any delay, appointed a judge to try the case and a lawyer to defend the insects. He also issued a pastoral calling on the peasants to form public processions and pray that they might get rid of the invasion. But the lawyer chosen by the vicar-general was very loyal to his clients, and, moreover, he was a man of great legal learning; so he compelled the prosecution to provide a piece of land outside of the vineyards and meadows, where the insects could live without doing harm to the vines, grasses, or grain. It was stipulated that this piece of land was to be of a definite area, and contain trees, herbs, and whatever else was needed to supply food to the beetle. But the inhabitants reserved the right in time of war (et parce que ce lieu est une seure retraite en temps de guerre) to go upon the land set apart for the use of the insects. The inhabitants, with the sanction of the vicar-general, agreed to the compromise on the 20th of June, 1587, and the peasants prayed the ecclesiastical court that, in default of the defendants (the beetles) accepting the offers that had been made them, the judge would order the vineyards of the inhabitants to be respected under certain penalties. The advocate for the animals demanded time for deliberation, and the trial being resumed in September following, he declared that he could not accept, in the cause of his clients, the offer that had been made to them, as the locality in question was barren, and did not produce anything. This was denied on the other side, and arbitrators were named to decide the question.

Dulaire, in his "History of Paris," mentions a legal process set forth in 1690 against the caterpillars that laid waste the cultivated portion of the little town of Pont-du-Chateua in Auvergne. A vicar named Burin excommunicated these caterpillars, and sent an account of the proceedings to the justice of the district, who laid an interdict upon these insects, and solemnly relegated them to an uncultivated spot which was duly designated.

No district could commence a legal process of this kind unless all its arrears of tithes were paid to the Church, and this circumstance gave rise to the well-known French legal maxim, "The first step toward getting rid of locusts is the payment of tithes."

The summonses were served by an officer of the court reading them at the places which the animals frequented. These citations were written out with all technical formality, and, that there might be no mistake, contained a description of the animals. Thus, the defendants were described as dirty animals in the form of rats, a grayish color, living in holes. This trial is famous in the annals of French law, for it was then that Chasseneuz, the famous advocate, won his first laurels. The rats not appearing on the first citation, Chasseneuz, their counsel, argued that the summons was of too local and individual a character; that as all the rats in the diocese were interested, all the rats should be summoned. This plea being admitted, the curate of every parish in the diocese was instructed to summon every rat for a future day. The day arriving, but not any rats, Chasseneuz said that, as all his clients were summoned, including young and old, sick and healthy, great preparations had to be made, and certain arrangements carried into effect, and he therefore begged for an extension of time. This also being granted, another day was appointed, and again, no rats appearing, Chasseneuz objected to the legality of the summons under certain circumstances. A summons from that court, he argued, implied full protection to the parties summoned, both on their way to it and on their return home; but his clients, the rats, though most anxious to appear in obedience to the court, did not dare to stir out of their holes on account of the number of evil-disposed cats kept by the plaintiffs. "Let the latter," he continued, "enter into bonds, under heavy pecuniary penalties, that their cats shall not molest my clients, and the summons will be at once obeyed." The court acknowledged the validity of this plea; but, the plaintiffs declining to be bound over for the good behavior of their cats, the period for the rats' attendance was adjourned sine die, and thus Chasseneuz gained his cause.

Leeches, doves, and other creatures were also tried, but in some cases feelings ran so strong that the defendants were said not to have received fair play. On one occasion a lawyer who had been six months dead was appointed to defend a host of tormenting insects known as chafers, and as the insects proved contumacious by refusing to appear in court, they were excommunicated and anathematized.

The civil courts assumed jurisdiction over domestic animals. When a complaint was made against a pig, a cow, or a horse, and the court was satisfied with the deposition, the accused animal was committed to prison, at the place of criminal justice where the trial was to take place. After hearing the witnesses, and taking down the depositions against the delinquent, and the crime of homicide being proved, the judge condemned the animal to be strangled, and hung by the two back legs to an oak tree or gibbet, according to the custom of the country.

The animals were led by a halter, one menial court official holding the cord; another walked behind and goaded the prisoner onward. Of all animals that were brought before the bar the pig was considered the most unruly, for while the learned counsel on both sides discussed, and the judge expounded, the hog frequently grunted and screamed and tried to poke his nose through the bars of the prisoner's box. Conduct of this kind was sometimes held to be disrespectful and told against the defendant. But an ox, a cow, or a bull, an ass or a dog that remained quiet received a certain measure of consideration for their demeanor. While the animals remained in prison, before, during, or after trial, they were entitled to the same amount of money each day for food as was provided for a human being. They were treated, in fact, exactly as human offenders. Let me cite a few interesting examples of domestic animals.

In 1497 a sow was condemned to be beaten to death for having eaten the chin of a child belonging to the village of Charonne. The sentence declared that the flesh of the sow should be thrown to the dogs, and that the owner of the animal and his wife should make a pilgrimage to Notre Dame de Pontoise, where, being the day of Pentecost, they should cry "Mercy," after which they were to bring back a certificate that this had been complied with.

The execution of these animals was public and solemn; sometimes they were clothed like men. In 1386 the judge of Falaise condemned a sow to be mutilated in the leg and head, and afterward to be hung, for having torn the face and arm, and then killing a child. This sow was executed in the public square, clothed in a man's dress. The execution cost ten sous, six deniers tournois, besides a new glove for the executioners.

The charter of Eleonore, composed in 1395, and called carta di logu of Sardina, states that the oxen and cows, wild or domestic, might be killed legally when they were taken in the commission of a crime. Asses guilty of the same conduct were treated more humanely; they were placed in the same category as thieves. The first time that one of these animals was found in a cultivated field which did not belong to his master, one of his ears was cut off. A repetition of the offence entailed the loss of the other ear. If caught a third time in the prohibited place, the ass was not hung like other large animals, but was confiscated to the prince of the country.

A pig once having destroyed a child, the image of St. Pancre was brought out, and the child, it is related, was restored to life. The pig was cited to appear in the bishop's court at Lausanne. It was found guilty of wilful murder, and sentenced to death. Ruchat says that "the executioner was a pork-butcher."

By turning to a list of the animals cited to appear before the courts from 1120 to 1744 may be mentioned the following: pigs, horses, cows, bulls, oxen, cantharides, rats, leeches, domestic fowl, moles, house-mice, field-mice, chafers, snails, weevils, grasshoppers, locusts, dogs, asses, caterpillars, goats, sheep, mules, pigeons, other birds, and worms.

Just one more curious incident in this strange history. In the year 1403, Simon de Baudemont, Lieutenant at Meulan, Jhean, Lord of Maintenon, the Bailiff of Mantes and Meulan, signed an attestation making known the expenses which had been incurred in order to execute justice on a sow that had eaten a child: "For expenses with a the jail the charge was 6 sols. Item, to the executioner who came from Paris to Meulan, to put the sentence in execution by the command of our Lord the Bailiff, and of the King's Attorney, 54 sols. Item, for the carriage that conveyed her to the execution, 6 sols. Item, for ropes to tie and haul her up, 2 sols, 8 deniers. Item, for gloves, 12 deniers; amounting in the whole to 69 sols, 8 deniers." The item for gloves has puzzled some persons. Southey suggests that they were insisted upon by the executioner as a point of honor, that no one might reproach him with having soiled his hands by performing on such a subject.

As late as the end of the seventeenth century vast flocks of pigeons devasted the grain fields in French Canada; they were cited to appear, had counsel assigned them, and were anathematized. Of course the pigeons are migatory birds, and they set out on the southern march shortly after being cursed.

There are several cases similar to all the foregoing, related in the legal records of Great Britain.

Wheat Quotations for the Day—Price Current for Produce and Other Articles

London wheat market opened firmer at lower quotations; corn quiet. Weather milder. Liverpool wheat firm, and outside quotations a shade lower. Corn quoted a shade lower.

The receipts of wheat at seven principal western points to-day are 468,772 bu, compared with 32,680 bu on the same day last year.

Wheat Stocks.—Toledo decreased 31,599 bu; New York decreased 462,429 bu.

Bradstreets says: While December showed an increase of American and Canadian stocks east of the Rocky mountains amounting to 6,245,000 bu., west of the Rocky mountains supplies in sight fell away 2,559,000 bu., and in Europe (including all wheat afloat therefor) the decrease during the month was 6,320,000 bu. Combining these totals one finds a total decrease of 8,879,000 bu. (Pacific coast, Europe and afloat), contrasted with a December gain in stocks east of the Rocky mountains amounting to 6,245,000 bu., pointing to a net December decrease of wheat in America afloat for Europe and in Europe of 2,634,000 bu. During December, 1890, a like analysis showed a total net increase in these stocks of wheat of about 4,000,000 bu., but in December, 1889, there was a net decrease of about 2,250,000 bu.

Also, that the exports of wheat (including flour) from the United States, as reported to Bradstreets this week amount to 4,183,121 bus within a week, previous week 5,321,000 bus, a decrease of about 20 per cent. within a week; but Indian corn exports for the week equal 3,321,484 bus, a jump of more than 25 per cent. within a week, while those of rye and of oats are less noticeable by reason of their proportions than heretofore.

The New York "Financial Chronicle" reports gross earnings of 148 roads for December increased 9.36 per cent., against 9.43 per cent. in November.

Business failures in the United States and Canada for the week were 330 against 435 the previous week, and 411 for the corresponding week in 1891.

The export demand Saturday at four Atlantic ports were 630,086 bu of wheat and flour—without Philadelphia—to an aggregate of 975,000 bu.

The export of corn was 795,936 bu, and of oats 38,827 bu.

English markets as reported herein show a better tone at the decline of Saturday for wheat and corn.

The shipments of wheat from India last week equaled 1,100,000 bu. Previous week 840,000 bu. From April 1, the beginning of the crop year, to January 16, 47,738,000 bu, compared with 23,070,000 bu in the corresponding period in 1890-91.

The misrepresentations of unscrupulous dealers in wheat hung as a cloud temporarily over the market seem to have been cleared away and there is a better show for honest dealers. Slowly the conditions are changing, and when American dealers conclude to maintain fair prices on this side, we shall see them reflected abroad. The change in conditions are as follows: Diminished receipts all over the west, with a fair—though decreased—outward movement in the past week shows their effects in decreased visible supply. The accumulations abroad were radically reduced in December and on present ratio of importations will continue to decrease. These eventualities will harden prices we hope and trust.

To-day the wheat markets have had another upward change, with more exhibition of confidence and increased business.

At one time prices were 1c higher east and west, but before the close markets eased off and the advance was about lost.

Corn has been very steady and quiet, without new events of interest.

Liverpool is quoted as closing steady.

Antwerp and Berlin higher, Paris steadier.

In New York January wheat closed 3-8 and May 1-4 higher. January corn 1-8 lower, May unchanged. January oats 3-8 up.

In Chicago May wheat closed 1-8 up. January corn 5-8 up, and May unchanged.

In Toledo we have had a moderate business only in wheat futures. There were a few orders on the buying side, but very little pressure to sell. Prices have ruled higher. On the call May sold at 96 1-8 96 1-4c. After the call May commenced at 96 1-2c and sold up to 7-8c and then the market became easier, and declined to the close at 96 1-8c, a gain of 1-4c. Cash wheat was not in very sharp demand, and only a few cars were sold. No. 2 soft sold at 91 1-2c to 91 1-4c and closed at 91c bid; No. 3 soft at 89c. No other grades dealt in.

Corn was much more active. No. 2 sold at 4 1-2. No. 3 at 39 1-2. No. 4 at 38 1-2. No. 3 yellow at 40. No. 2 yellow at 41 1-4. Nothing doing in oats or rye. Dressed hogs at $4.75@5.00.

Clover seed was a little more active and about steady. Prime for cash at $5.55, February at $5.60, March at $5.62 1-2 @5.65. No. 2 at $5.32@5.42 1-2.

The visible supply of wheat was decreased last week 1,515,000 bu. Corn 187,000 bu. Oats, 166,000 bu. In the corresponding week in 1891 wheat decreased 364,000 bu, corn 71,000 bu, oats 219,000 bu.

The receipts of this commodity at Toledo last week were 1,612 bags, shipments 2,293 bags. In the corresponding week in 1891 the receipts were 4,584 bags, shipments 4,059 bags. Since September 1 to January 16, receipts have been 50,418 bags, and the shipments 34,722 bags, compared with receipts 51,473 bags and shipments 42,478 bags in the corresponding period in 1890-91.

The exports from New York for the week ending January 9, were 5,863 bags, and since September 1 to same date 45,671 bags, compared with 36,242 bags in the corresponding period in 1890-91.

There was decidedly more activity on the stock exchange this morning. In the two hours to noon 244,800 shares were sold as against about 165,000 during the same hours Saturday. The railroad stocks as a rule were all higher, while the industrials were all lower. The changes either way, however, were only fractional. Shortly after the opening the market developed marked weakness with the whisky trust and Missouri Pacific leading the decline. The former fell 2 per cent., while the decline in Missouri Pacific was 1 1-4. The general market declined 1-4 to 3-4 per cent. There was a slight rally about the first call, but it soon gave way under a sharp selling of Reading, Rock Island, St. Paul, Northern Pacific preferred, Missouri Pacific, Richmond & West Point and the sugar trust. Reading fell 1 per cent. by 11 o'clock and the lowest figures of the morning were current. In the hour to noon National cordage certificates were the features. Under a limited selling the preferred dropped from 109 to 106 3-4 and the common from 97 1-4 to 95 7-8. St. Paul and Reading were the weakest on the railroad list. At noon the general market was off 1-8 to 2 1-2 per cent. At this writing there is a steadier tone. The selling and decline in the stock market this morning was attributed in part to the war scare and the belief that a rupture between the United States and Chile is inevitable.

Will any republican in the senate have the honesty and courage to oppose the confirmation of Judge Woods? Probably not.

The Harrison bureau is being organized and put into working shape. The little Sunday school story about the president and his secretary having a mutual understanding to the effect that if one would the other wouldn't, was a gauzy fabrication.

A bureau of emigration for the state of Kentucky will be organized in Louisville, to secure immigration and at the same time watch out that it is assorted and desirable. Just what will be the plan to discourage undesirable settlers is not said.

For the first time in his political history, jingoism is gone out of the Blaine policy. If he shall succeed, with the help of Minister Montt, in settling the Chilean difficulty amicably, in spite of the president's manifestations, great will be the glory thereof—in this year of '92.

The bandit raid on the Mexican border is at an end. Garza's following was largely imaginary, and the leader was nothing more than a daring desparado. Exit Garza; if you had succeeded in inciting revolution and bloodshed you would have been something of a hero. As it is you are an ignominious fizzle.

Must make the erstwhile gay Prince of Wales feel old and a bit blue, to witness the hustling anxiety about his successor. It is only a few yesterdays ago the Laureate was singing "Sea kings daughter from over the sea," and now the grandchildren prospective are the most talked about. So runs the world away.

As a pointer, the leading mugwump organ, Harper's Weekly, says: "Undoubtedly the independent vote is now very much larger than ever; it has never returned to the republican party, and neither has it become identified with the democratic party, and, (speaking of candidates), it will observe the development of the situation with very great interest."

Here is a comparison: Griffin has been in the legislature four years.

Flickinger, ten days.

Flickinger has had two Toledoans appointed to office—George Holmes and Albert Myers.

Griffin never secured an appointment for anybody. Very likely he is too selfish to try.

The exports of flour in December were the heaviest ever known, showing an increase of 50 per cent. With the world looking to the farmers of America for food, and the yield bounteous, yet the farmers are in trouble. Perhaps they will come to understand that prices of what they have to buy as well as to sell, have to do with the final balancing of accounts.

If Uncle Sam must give Chile a shaking-up he can do it, but in the home circle just the same it can be remembered that conservative statesmen say and believe if Minister Egan had been recalled in the middle of September, the trouble might have been avoided. It is a sad commentary on the sublime "Pan-American" sentiment that overflowed the festal cup so brief time ago.

The one thing difficult to understand and that protectionists fail to explain is, if the duty on cheap woolens has made them less in price to the consumer, as the organs continue to affirm, why does the manufacturer oppose a repeal of that duty? And how does the import tax protect? Our trade in the foreign product is not lessened. What is that tariff tax good for anyway, if it reaches not at all the army of consumers, has no visible effect upon the volume of imports, and compels the decline of prices in first hands? When the things claimed for the wonderful law are grouped they make a queer mixture.

In the province of Samara, Russia, alone, are not less than 1,250,000 persons dying of starvation, and in the same old-world communication that contains this statement, it is reported that the whole subscription of St. Petersburg for its own poor has been stolen, and the fifteen millions pounds of rye flour, bought for distribution, is so badly adulterated as to be poisonous and unfit for use.. It is a deplorable state of affairs, and in a Christian country. The people are robbed and exiled. The policy of silence, enforced by the government for political purposes, has kept back knowledge of the condition until the catastrophe is appalling. With the conduct of the Russian government towards its own so outrageously barbarous, the question is what is the duty of other countries in the matter. The natural disposition would be to feel the slaves and punish their masters.

WILL THERE BE WAR?

The unusual activity in naval circles portends serious trouble with the fish worm republic of Chile which stretches along the east shore of the Pacific from Cape Horn almost to the equator. The wisdom of diplomacy may avert actual hostilities, though the hot headed Chileans flushed with recent successes in war, really have an idea they can whip this Yankee nation on water, and successfully repel invasion of their territory. They have a formidable navy and might be able to seriously disturb the peace of our Pacific coast, but in the end the obstreprous upstart would be soundly trounced.

There is serious difference of opinion in our own country as to the merits of the present controversy, and until congress concludes to assume aggressive measures, discussion of the trouble is proper. If it becomes necessary to fight then all differences will cease. In this land of loyalty to Old Glory there will be no north and no south, no republicans and no democrats, but one mighty country will be united for a conflict that shall have only one ending, and that crowned with the laurels of victory. A conflict of arms with Chile might involve the country in trouble with other nations. If so, let it be so. American prowess and American resources are equal to the undertaking, and American arms will still further advance this republic among the foremost nations of the earth. Our people do not court war, neither do our people fear the consequences of war. The unorganized militia of the United States can be quickly mobilized into an invincible army of determined fighters.

Should war come the politics of the war will be discussed and settled after the war shall close. Democrats will take their chances in that debate and settlement. While trouble is imminent and danger threatens, the administration will have no more loyal supporters of an aggressive policy than the democrats, who, in fighting capacity as in voting strength, outnumber their political opponents.

One country, one flag, one destiny. Not a disloyal man in this broad republic. In such strength is invincibility.

ADVICE TO THE FARMER.

A concensus of opinions and advisements of all the political, commercial and trades journals in the country as to the farmers' troubles and the remedy therefor, would be an amusing, if not an instructive addition to present day economic literature. The New York Daily Commercial Bulletin, which is always at home with its good judgment on purely commercial questions, has a column or more of diagnosis and remedy in a recent issue, for the farmers' troubles. It furnishes another illustration of the fact that the commercial world is interested chiefly for itself, and does not understand the situation and needs of the agriculturist at all. To advise farmers not to mortgage their lands and their crops means nothing except they can be told at the same time how to manage their business without. Why should the farmer be in such dire straits in this, the most favored land in the world, and under a government where every man helps, with his ballot, to make the laws? Why are farms mortgaged and their owners unable to pay taxes? "If interest is too high," says the adviser, "refuse to pay it. If the retailer of goods puts on exorbitant prices, the consumer may choose or not to pay them, and retail dealers will soon be compelled to charge only what consumers are willing to pay." Perhaps this is a little the quaintest advice yet offered. If a combine of capitalists put up a class of the necessaries of life a notch or two, just go without till they see the point and come down! In other words, boycott the trust, and go hungry and cold while you do it.

"It must be understood," says the Bulletin writer, "that absolutely no remedy is possible for this unhappy state of things, excepting greater thrift, greater economy and greater attention to sound business principles." This is not very helpful or very comforting, but will not fail of a mission if it shall put the farmers on their mettle, giving them to understand they must look out for themselves. Favors in legislation are not for them. Their first move should be to go to the root of the matter and find out the cause for depression in their industry when other industries are booming and other men are piling up fortunes.

The smuggling between Maine towns and neighboring towns in the provinces, dwelt upon at length in a recent issue of the Bee, is getting considerable newspaper notice and free advertising. This is well. The light of publicity should be turned on all the dark phases of evasion of law. The Courier-Journal says: "When the president is done considering gerrymanders, he will take a little time to look into the smuggling trade of the New England border." But he will not. No defender of the theory of prohibitive tariff dares to honestly investigate the practical working of the theory

Mrs. Calvin S. Brice will present a stained-glass window to the college at Oxford, O., where she was graduated. The window will be designed and executed by Miss Mary Tillinghast, and will represent a "sweet girl graduate," holding in one hand a lighted torch, typifying knowledge, and in the other a roll of parchment. The model for the face of the graduate is the pretty daughter of Senator and Mrs. Brice.

The New York World expresses the general sentiment of this country relative to Minister Egan when it says, in this culminative fashion: "His presence keeps alive the unfriendly feeling with which he has caused us to be regarded. He should come home. He should have come before negotiations were entered into. He should never have gone to Chile."

Objector Holman, of Indiana, made great sport for the surplus squanderers of the Fifty-first congress. Now it is the people who smile while in the house of the Fifty-second congress Mr. Holman can command a vote of 229 to 40 against unnecessary subsidies and bounties.

The Boston Globe is of the opinion there are indications that the nomination of Judge Woods, of "block-of-five" repute, may fail of confirmation by the republican senate. The anti-Harrison solons are quite as eager as the democrats, apparently, to secure his rejection.

Great Britain is safe. The Boston Herald says Mr. McAllister has spoken. He observes that Prince George is a well built chap, and will honor his new position. The throne will now cease tottering.

A movement is started in Illinois to nominate Rev. Joseph Cook for the presidency on the prohibition ticket. What does Boston say?

"Whom the Gods Would Destroy," etc.

The way in which the followers of Foraker and Sherman are revealing the secrets of each other's campaign methods makes people regret that senatorial elections come only once in six years. The Ohio papers are making things very easy for the future biographer of that pure patriot and sagacious statesman, John Sherman.—Chicago Times.

Ohio's Gentlemen.

Gov. Campbell's distinguished consideration of Gov. McKinley, and Gov. McKinley's high appreciation of Gov. Campbell, were the marked features of the inauguration ceremonies at Columbus. They shine like good deeds in a naughty world.—Boston Herald.

The People Sicken of It, Also

Russell B. Harrison, sometimes known as "Prince Russ," is reported as saying that he is "heartily sick of playing the role of president's son." The people will relieve him, if his father's party does not anticipate them, on the 4th of March, 1893.—New York World.

They Will Find Out, Some Day.

If somebody can discover the bacillus of republicanism he will confer a boon upon the people of this country, many of whom are suffering from the disease without knowing what it is that hurts them.—St. Louis Republic.

The World's Fair Catastrophe.

Editor Shepard threatens to publish a daily edition of his unique journal on the world's fair grounds during the exposition. This is practically the first backset the world's fair project has received.—Chicago Mail.

A Featherhead Theory.

The featherhead theory is that if Mr. Mills and one or two other men were to pass away the democratic party would have to sit down in the road and disband itself.—Atlanta Constitution.

Cheaper and Wiser.

A first-class gun for a ship of war costs $79,500. Possibly this is one reason the administration hesitates to go to war with Chile. It would be cheaper to recall Pat Egan.—Kansas City Star.

THE NEW CATHOLIC ORDER.

A Meeting Held Here Yesterday In the Interest of the Catholic Knights.

A large and enthusiastic meeting was held at Friendship hall yesterday afternoon in the interests of the new beneficial order, the Catholic Knights of Ohio. Addresses were delivered by J. J. Pater, of Hamilton, state president; Henry Kistner, of Cincinnati, state secretary, who spoke in German; F. J. Weisenberger, of Defiance, and Hon. J. F. Neilan, of Hamilton. The order is but four months old and has a membership of about seven hundred. A large number of gentlemen signified their intention of organizing a central branch of the order, and a meeting of those interested will be held next Thursday evening at the office of P. J. Metler, on Washington street, at which time the organization will be effected. There are already two flourishing branches of about 125 members in St. Peter's and Immaculate Conception congregations, and it is thought that the order will grow rapidly in Toledo, as it has many new features not found in the older orders.

MENTIONED ON THE STREETS.

That the Paragon oil folks are preparing to extend into new fields.

That the necrology of the past week included several well known people.

That the political broom will soon begin to sweep democrats out of state institutions.

That temperance was the theme in all the evangelical Sunday schools in the city yesterday.

That while zero weather is everywhere, the Future Great is quite comfortable in this respect.

That Wednesday night's police board meeting will not be as exciting as was the last one.

That Toledo is becoming very English in the matter of gentlemen smoking pipes on the streets.

That it now looks as if Wm. Kirkby had smooth sailing for the state railroad commissionership.

That the "society young ladies" are planning to give an elegant leap year party in February.

That several very swell concerts will be given in the near future for the benefit of charitable institutions.

That "The Discovery of America" will be discussed in this city by Prof. John. Fisk on the evening of February 22.

That the 20th day of this month will be a festive one. Weddings' parties and receptions are being planned for this date.

That the new features introduced at the cyclorama on Jefferson street make the enterprise one of the greatest sights of the city.

That application will be made to the board of pardons at the next session for the release of Madame De Vere from the penitentiary.

That Toledo once more comes to the front in the election of Delegate Dornsife as vice president of the International Plasterers' association.

That Toledo's infirmary officials will be represented in the convention under the auspices of the state board of charities at Columbus this week.

That the judicial districts are already marked out by the managers. Nickels to cents that the counties comprising the Toledo sub-division will be shook up.

That the practice of breaking into cars in the freight yards appears to be growing. Quiet investigation is going on, and a haul will be made some of these days.

That there is some scramble for the honor of having the first notarial commission issued by Gov. McKinley. It is claimed by Columbus, Cincinnati and Toledo. But what's the odds?

That Speaker Laylin and Huron county republicans will not be very apt to give much support to Mr. Griffin in his race for delegate to the Minneapolis convention. Because why? Griffin did not help them.

DIGNITY IN PARTISANSHIP.

Examples Worthy To Be Followed.

To the Editor—You will permit me to express my appreciation of the welcome given by the Bee to our new governor, on the day of his inauguration, to wit:

"The entire state wishes Gov. McKinley a pleasant and prosperous administration."

Coming as it does from a pronounced democratic journal, which had done what it could to prevent the election of the new governor, such sentiment was both credit able and timely.

It is a pleasure here to state that the respectful and considerate bearing of Gov. Campbell at the inauguration of his republican opponent, was no less proper and commendable. Retiring governors have been known to have "pressing engagements" elsewhere, on such occasions.

It is no less a source of gratification to feel assured that had Gov. Campbell, instead of Maj. McKinley, been chosen by the electors of Ohio as their chief magistrate, there would have been found republican journals giving to the former a welcome no less cordial than was that of the Bee; while there is no reason to doubt that in such case the defeated candidate would have manifested for his successful competitor a degree of personal respect no less marked than was that shown to him.

It was the privilege of the writer to attend the memorable debate of the two candidates for governor at Ada, in October, and while much was there said to impress partisans favorably and much unfavorably, it is a pleasure here to recognize one feature of that occasion which justly challenged the pride of all listeners. Reference is made to the personal bearing of each disputant toward his opponent throughout the discussion of some three hours' duration, and marked by a degree of antagonism seldom exceeded in unyielding earnestness, not one word of personal reference was uttered that was not both dignified and considerate. "My friend" was the uniform term employed amid the most earnest protest of the one against the views, statements and official action of the other. It was a spectacle most creditable, not only to the distinguished persons concerned, but also to the two great political parties which they respectively represented, and to the state of Ohio. While memory fails to recall like occasion for such bearing of candidates, it is due to the distinguished men of the past to believe that with like opportunity, many of them would have improved the same no less creditably. And yet it must be conceded that many—aye, quite too many—public men, both as candidates and as disputants, indulge in personal bitterness as discreditable to themselves, as it is disrespectful toward the electors whose favor is expected to be secured by such means. The considerate citizen too often finds cause for regret and resentment in the bitterness and violence which so largely mark partisan discussion, both on the rostrum and in the political press. Hence, the propriety of special recognition of cases like those referred to in this connection, to the end, that as examples, they may become helpful in a reform now very much needed.

A REPUBLICAN.

VINCENT HAMILTON.

Funeral This Afternoon—Produce Exchange Testimonial.

This afternoon the funeral of the late Vincent Hamilton occurred from his late residence on Huron street. The exercises were in charge of Sanford L. Collins lodge of Masons, and Rev. S. D. Hutsinpiller, pastor of St. Paul's M. E. church. A large number of sorrowing friends attended.

The following testimonial was adopted by the Produce Exchange this afternoon:

Again the lesson of the uncertainty of our days on earth is forcibly presented to us in the death of our dear friend and member of the Exchange, Vincent Hamilton, who died Saturday morning last.

Mr. Hamilton's earlier life was that of an intelligent farmer in northern Indiana and in southern Michigan. He came to Toledo in 1862 and very soon thereafter embarked in the grain commission business with the Hon. J. D. Cook, yet of this city. Later he was associated with Messrs. Edward Goldsmith and C. T. Howe. In 1876 he was elected president of our association.

Our departed friend possessed, in a marked degree some of the highest traits of human character. In all his business relations he developed what has been called "the noblest work of God," an honest man. In disposition he was retiring, gentle and genial, and his friendship, sincere and lasting. He was essentially a man of peace and prudence, and never of storm or passion. In his intercourse with our associated membership he was the friend of all of us, and he knew no enemy.

As a citizen of Toledo Mr. Hamilton was held in high esteem, and in all his relations in life his career has bequeathed to us the memory of an honored name and an example well worthy of our imitation.

Resolved, That a copy of these minutes be sent to the family of our deceased friend, and entered on our records.

GENTLEMEN'S RACES

To Take Place on Madison Street, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday Afternoons.

Owners of good horses will have a little fun this week, as a series of races have been arranged to take place Wednesday, Thursday and Friday afternoons at 3 o'clock on Madison street, from Woodruff avenue to Sixteenth street. The Ketcham farm offers as prizes three street blankets. The judges will be: Geo. G. Hadley, Geo. W. Boos, of this city, and Jerry D. Dewey, of Cleveland. R. J. Wheeler will act as starter. All horses but those from the Ketcham farm will be allowed to enter. Entries should be made the evening before the races, to Mr. Wheeler, at Dr. Newton's office. Plenty of sport is promised as gentlemen owning good horse flesh are looking after a chance for a bout and will be on hand with the best their stables afford. There will be plenty of fun for the on-lookers as well.

THE FIGHT IN INDIANA.

Harrison is Making a Strong Fight.

Blaine Men Are Not Idle, However, and the Contest Promises to be Interesting.

Peru, Ind., Jan. 18.—The republican committee met in this city for the purpose of electing a chairman for the republican county central committee for two years, the contest being between E. L. Reasoner, an ardent Blaine man, and H. P. Loveland, a decided Harrison man, and after a spirited wrangle Mr. Reasoner was chosen.

Crawfordsville, Ind., Jan. 18.—The republican central committee organized for the coming campaign. C. N. Williams was elected chairman, and resolutions were unanimously passed indorsing the administration and recommending the renomination of President Harrison.

Indianapolis, Jan. 18.—The republican county central committee met and, after a long and tempestuous wrangle over contests in the Fourth and Tenth wards, the administration committeemen were seated by decisive majorities. Several onlookers left the hall in a rage, vowing the party should hear from them in November. The Harrison managers are now and will be in full control of the campaign in this city.

Both Harrison Men.

Delta, La., Jan. 18.—The republicans of the Fifth Louisiana congressional district, in convention here, elected J. D. Donnelly and Rev. David Young, both pronounced Harrison men, as delegates to the national convention.

HAND OVER THE CASH.

Philetus Sawyer Has Lost His Case.

Nearly Half a Million Dollars Must Be Covered Into the Wisconsin Treasury.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 18.—Judge Newman filled his opinion in the great state treasury cases with the clerk of the Dane county circuit court this morning. The decision is in favor of the state in every point, giving all that the state claimed.

The cases tried were one against E. C. McFetridge, state treasurer for the official term from 1884 to 1886 and one against H. B. Harshaw for 1889—1890. They were tried as test cases, from 1878 to 1891. The amount involved in the cases covered in this decision is about $350,000, and is for interest the treasurers have received on the deposits of state funds and kept for their own use.

PLAIN TALK TO YOUNG MEN.

Remember, son, that the world is older than you are by several years; that for thousands of years it has been so full of smarter and better young men than yourself that their feet stuck out of the dormer windows; that when they died not one man in ten millions went to the funeral, or even heard of the death. Be as smart as you can, of course. Know as much as you can, without blowing the packing out of your cylinder head; shed the light of your wisdom abroad in the world, don't dazzle people with it. And don't imagine a thing is so simple because you say it is. Don't be too sorry for your father because he knows much less than you do. The world has great need of young men, but no greater need than the young men have of it. Your clothes fit you better than your father's fit him; they cost more money; they are more stylish; your mustache is neather; the cut of your hair is better, and you are prettier, oh! far prettier than "pa." But, young man, the old gentleman gets the biggest salary, and his homely, scrambling signature on the business end of a check will draw more money out of the bank in five minutes than you could get out of a ream of paper and a copper-plate signature in six months. Young men are useful, and they are ornamental, and we all love them, and we couldn't engineer a picnic successfully without them. But they are no novelties, son. Oh, no; nothing of the kind. They have been here before. Don't be so modest as to shut yourself clear out; but don't be so fresh you will have to be put away in the cool to keep from spoiling. Don't be afraid that your merit, if you have merit, will not be discovered. People all over the world are hunting for you; if you are worth finding they will find you. A diamond isn't so easily found as a quartz pebble, but people search for it all the more intently.

WOMEN AS WORKERS.

Our greatgrandmothers certainly would think the world turned upside down could they have any knowledge of the present state of affairs concerning women as workers outside of the home. The last lifetime of average duration has seen an immense change accomplished in the relations of women to salaried work. Fifty years ago women who could not "take in boarders," who could not teach, or fit dresses, or "go out nursing," or live in service, must be dependent on their relatives or the town for support. It was considered unfeminine and indecorous and something unheard of, and therefore worthy of reprobation, if women attempted to vary this program, which had the sanction of hoary custom and the approval of grandmothers in a long line. Besides, she did not know how to vary it if she wanted to, and in the mass she was incapable of helping herself as her best friend would have her to be. Everything is different now. All about Chicago are signs on which appear the names of women. Kates, and Marys, and Lucys are written alongside of Johns, and Williams, and Henrys. Women preach and practice medicine and law and retain the charm of femininity. They fill positions as members of the board of education, as police matrons, as members of the examining committee of the board of health, and perform nearly all other work that men do. There are over 40,000 women and girls in Chicago who are in business as wage-workers. Truly the times change and we are changed with them.—Chicago Mail.

ALIVE WITH LIZARDS.

It is reported that a post mortem examination of Daniel Mummert, who recently died in Adams county, Pennsylvania, found his stomach literally alive with lizzards. He had been suffering for some time with what the doctors called pulmonary consumption. A short time ago he was seized with a violent fit of vomiting and threw up six small lizards. He gradually sank and at his death an examination was held with the aforesaid results. It is said that he traveled about a good deal, frequently drinking from roadside springs, and it is thought that he swallowed the lizards in the water, though no theory is advanced as to how the lizards managed to resist the action of the gastric juices and to escape smothering.

HIS WIFE'S FAULT.

A certain Frenchman, famous for his habit of grumbling at everything and on every occasion, was attacked by inflammatory rheumatism and was carefully nursed by his wife, who was very devoted to him in spite of his fault-finding disposition. His sufferings caused her to burst into tears sometimes, as she sat at his bedside. One day a friend of the invalid came in and asked him how he was getting on. "Badly, badly!" he exclaimed; "and it's all my wife's fault." "Is it possible?" asked the friend in surprise. "Yes. The doctor told me that humidity was bad for me; and there that woman sits and cries, just to make it moist in the room!"

THE SARAGOSSA TOWER.

The famous old tower in Saragossa, Spain, has been condemned and will be demolished. The structure is of brick and was built four centuries ago. By a subsidence of the foundation the tower has departed about nine feet from the perpendicular, and, although it was restored 30 years ago, it has fallen into worse condition than before. A commission that has examined it has reported that it is not feasible to make the tower secure, and, therefore it will have to come down.

ABSOLUTELY PURE

A COURAGEOUS WOMAN.

She Extricates Herself and Child From A Perilous Situation.

A lady whose name we were unable to learn met with a startling adventure while traveling on the stage near Moulton's station very early one morning last week, says the Susanville (Mont.) Mail. The lady resides in Montana and with her 5-year-old daughter was on her way to visit her parents, who reside near Fort Bidwell. Arriving at Amedee, the remainder of the trip must be traveled by stage-coach. Herself and daughter constituted the passengers, and, as the night was extremely cold, blustery, and disagreeable, she preferred riding on the inside of the coach. Before leaving Amedee the curtains were all fastened. The coach rumbled along all right for miles, the horses were changed and nothing unusual transpired until Madeline Plains was reached, when suddenly the driver fell from the seat and the team continued driverless on toward the next station. The lady soon realized her plight and endeavored to vacate the coach as expeditiously as possible, but the curtains were fastened on the outside. Possessed with great presence of mind, she hastily took her penknife and cut the fastenings and thus secured an avenue to reach terra firma. Her first move was to drop the little girl from the coach as gently as possible, and then she followed, alighting in safety. After running a short distance she managed to stop the horses and, placing the child on the seat, the lady mounted the coach and drove on to the Moulton station. A relief expedition was sent out after the driver, who was met beating his weary way into the station. It seems the jehu had become sleepy, or something of the kind, and losing his equilibrium had fallen overboard. Another driver less sleepy was found at the station, who continued on the journey. Fortunately the team happened to be very gentle, otherwise the adventure might not have terminated so luckily. The lady displayed great nerve and coolness, and it is due to that fact that herself and little daughter escaped a fearful fate.

AN IMPERIAL PRACTICAL JOKER.

New Year's eve is always an occasion for revelry of a kind that partakes of the nature of very rough horseplay in the streets of Berlin, and the police, knowing that their efforts would be fruitless, make no attempt to check it. According to an unwritten law, any one who ventures into the streets with a tall hat on his head that night is bound to have it driven over his ears and crushed flat by means of a blow with the fist or the flat of the hand. No one was wont to enter with more zest in the species of horseplay than the present Emperor William, who on one occasion, however, got his hand severely damaged in "bonneting" an old gentleman. The latter blessed with a hard head and an imaginative disposition, had fixed inside his hat a flat piece of wood with a number of long, sharp spikes set into it and pointing upward. The consequence was that when Prince William, as he was then, brought down his hand with all his might upon the hat, he was severely injured by the spikes. The old gentleman had to pay dearly for his little joke, for he was sentenced by the police magistrate before whom he was haled to three months' imprisonment and a fine for maiming a citizen of Berlin by his contrivance, and was congratulated by his friends on having narrowly escaped a charge of high treason in committing the crime of mayhem on the person of the heir to the throne.—New York Record.

A DOG'S BUNCO GAME.

A true story is told of a farmer's dog who had been guilty of obtaining goods under false pretenses. He is extremely fond of sausage, and has been taught by his owner to go after them for him, carrying a written order in his mouth. Day after day he appeared at the butcher-shop, bringing his master's order, and by and by the butcher became careless about reading the document. Finally, when settlement day came the farmer complained that he was charged with more sausage than he had ordered. The butcher was surprised, and the next time Lion came in with a slip of paper between his teeth, he took the trouble to look at it. The paper was blank, and further investigation showed that whenever the dog felt a craving for sausage he looked around for a piece of paper and trotted off to the butcher's. The farmer is something out of pocket, but squares the account by boasting of his dog's intelligence.—Farm and Fireside.

OVER AND OVER.

"Just the same thing over and over!"
But that is the way of the world, my dear;
Over and over, over and over,
Old things repeated from year to year!

Hear what the sun saith: "Patient still,
The vaulted heavens I climb and climb,
Over and over with tireless will,
Day after day till the end of time!

"Never a pause and never a rest;
Yet every morning the earth is new
And ever the clouds in the golden West
Have a fresh glory shining through."

Hear what the grass saith: "Up the hills
And through the orchard I creep and creep,
Over the meadows, and where the rills
Laugh in the shadows cool and deep.

"Every spring is just the same!
And because it is, I am sure to see
The oriole's flash of vivid flame
In the pink-white bloom of the apple tree."

Hear what dear love saith: "Ah, I hear
The same old story over and over;
Mother and maiden year by year
Whisper it still to child and lover!

"But sweeter it grows from age to age,
The song begotten so long ago,
When first man came to his heritage,
And walked with God in the even glow."
—Julia C. R. Dorr in Harper's Young People.

SAFETY IN THE MIDST OF DANGER.

This would seem a contradiction—is so, in fact, to the eye. But experience has proved its possibility. Take the case of the individual who dwells in a malarious region. A robust constitution is no certain defence against the dreaded chills. What is? Recorded testimony, covering a period little short of half a century, proves that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is precisely this. This continent does not limit the field where the medicine has proved its efficacy. In South America, the Isthmus of Panama, Mexico, everywhere in fact where miasma-born disease takes on its most obstinate and formidable types, the Bitters is a recognized specific in illimitable demand, and prescribed by physicians of repute. Potent, too, is it in disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels, and against that destroyer, la grippe. It improves appetite and sleep, neutralizes rheumatism and kidney complaints.

Legal Notice.

David A. Fuller and Susan M. Fuller, his wife, whose place of residence is unknown, will take notice that on the 4th day of November, 1891, Geo. Schuler filed in the common pleas court of Lucas county, Ohio, his petition in which in substance

Pleasures of Memory.

What a blessed thing is memory? How it brings up the pleasures of the past, and hides its unpleasantnesses! You recall your childhood days, do you not, and wish they would return? You remember the pleasant associations, while the unpleasant ones are forgotten. Perhaps to your mind comes the face of some friend. It was once a pale, sad face. It showed marks of pain, lines of care. It seemed to be looking into the hereafter, the unknown future. And then you recalled how it brightened, how it recovered its rosy hue, how it became a picture of happiness and joy. Do you remember these things? Many people do, and gladly tell how the health returned, how happiness came back, how the world seemed bright. They tell how they were once weak, nerveless, perhaps in pain, certainly unhappy. They tell of sleepless nights, restless days, untouched food, unstrung nerves. And then they tell how they became happy, healthy and strong once more. You have heard it often in the past, have you not? You have heard people describe how they were cured and kept in health? You certainly can remember what it is that has so helped people in America. If not, listen to what Mrs. Annie Jenness Miller, who is known universally as the great dress reformer, says: "Six years ago, when suffering from mental care and overwork, I received the most pronounced benefit from the use of that great medicine, Warner's Safe Cure." Ah, now you remember. Now you recall how many people you have heard say this same thing. Now you reflect how much you have heard of this great Cure. Now you are ready to admit that memory is usually pleasing, that the highest pleasure comes from perfect health, and that this great remedy has done more to produce and prolong health than any other discovery ever known in the entire history of the whole world.

CHEATING IN HORSE BLANKETS

Nearly every pattern of 5/A Horse Blanket is imitated in color and style. In most cases the imitation looks just as good as the genuine, but it hasn't the warp threads, and so lacks strength, and while it sells for only a little less than the genuine it isn't worth one-half as much. The fact that 5/A Horse Blankets are copied is strong evidence that they are THE STANDARD, and every buyer should see that the 5/A trade mark is sewed on the inside of the Blanket.

A SMOKE RING.

It all comes back again in dream
Whene'er I light a fresh cigar,
From dusk of memory I seem
To waken one ecstatic star;
The heavy curtains drawn aside
Reveal a patch of twilight blue,
And through the window opened wide
Comes breath of roses steeped in dew.

I watch the blue wreaths upward roll
And fade before my drowsy eyes,
And fancy the tobacco's soul
Gains its tobacco paradise;
So lovingly the curls caress,
So lightly float and kiss and greet,
I dream that all their happiness
Is caught from my illusion sweet.

Like ghosts they softly go and come
Across the shadows of the night,
And bring me happy visions from
The blissful dreamland of delight;
Again I smell the dewy rose
Of that sweet Once-upon-a-time
Which put my paragraphs of prose
In meter, melody and rhyme.

Dear Heart of mine, do you recall
That tender twilight time of love,
How you reached out one finger small
To catch the curl that soared above?
Do you recall the tears that came
When first I found the hope to bring
Unto my lips your own dear name
And wish the azure curl a ring?

O, solace of tobacco brown!
O, joy of Summer night cigars!
From you whene'er the heavens frown
I learn the spell to wake the stars!
And best of all, that wish so fond
Made in the heyday of my life
Came true, and now a diamond
Gleams on the finger of my wife!

Will Carleton based his well-known poem, "Over the Hills to the Poorhouse," on an actual acquaintance with two worthy old people, inmates of an almshouse, whose history he came to know while a boy at school. They had been abandoned by their children, and Carleton heard the story of their misfortunes from the father's own lips. The moral effect was so great at the time of its publication that a number of cases were known in which penitent children removed their parents from the public almshouses to give them personal care.

PRESIDENTIAL TIMBER

Being Sawed, Split and Nicely Piled Up,

So That the Delegates Will Have Little to Do.

Democrats Assemble at the National Capitol and Talk of the Available Men in Their Party to Head the Ticket.

Washington, Jan. 18.—There is now a good deal of talk regarding the next presidential candidate of the democratic party at the capitol. It is occasioned by interviews published in a New York paper with the democratic members of congress from New York and with many of the leaders of the party now at Albany.

The general tenor of these interviews was that Senator Hill would control the New York delegation in the next national convention.

Nobody seemed to predict that Mr. Cleveland would be in sight so far as New York was concerned. Bourke Cockran, the spokesman of Tammany Hall, was quoted as saying—and he vouched for the correctness of the assertion to your correspondent this evening—that "the New York delegation to the next democratic national convention will be in favor of the nomination of Senator Hill for president. Nothing, I think, is plainer than that. But I do not mean to convey the idea that the matter has already been arranged. Nothing has been done to my knowledge, to forestall a fair expression of public sentiment, but Senator Hill is so decidedly the favorite of his party at home that it is merely a matter of getting democrats together to insure an expression in his favor."

This voices the opinion of Tammany Hall. The other Tammany members from New York, notably Cummings, Fitch and Dunphy, corroborated what Cockran said. Tim Campbell, who is supposed to be a county democracy man, admitted that Hill was the favorite, and that he could have the delegation if he wanted it. Dan Lockwood, of Buffalo, who placed Cleveland in nomination for sheriff of Erie county, New York; mayor of Buffalo, governor of New York and president of the United States, had this to say:

"From the present outlook, I think Senator Hill will have the delegation in his favor. The state committee is a Hill committee, and the machinery is in the hands of his friends. Legislation which is certain to come up before congress may alter the position of affairs. Congress has done nothing, as yet, and upon its consideration of several grave questions will depend, in a great measure, the candidate of the democracy for president."

The men from New York who are supposed to be the friends of Cleveland had nothing to say, or, if they said anything, it was to the effect that Hill seemed to have the drop on the situation, so to speak. None of them who preferred Cleveland ventured an opinion that Cleveland could control the delegation from his state.

This was what caused the democrats at the capitol to begin talking about the presidency and their candidates. It is as certain as anything that has not yet occurred could be that if Cleveland was supported by the New York delegation he would be nominated by the next national convention of his party.

At least this is what the democrats from every state in the union, whether they are for or against Cleveland, assert, but the most stalwart Cleveland man in Washington, no matter whence he hails, admits that unless Cleveland has the New York delegation behind him he will not be nominated as a candidate in the national convention.

It was this contingency that brought on the discussion in the democratic cloakrooms of both the senate and the house. It is admitted that the men from New York who talked through the columns of the New York newspaper as a general rule voice the sentiment of their party in New York state.

It was consequently assumed that Hill would control the delegation from New York, and that consequently Mr. Cleveland was practically out of the race for the presidency, as without the indorsement of his own state he could not be seriously considered as a candidate.

The question was then asked: "What are we going to do about it?" The western democrats were to a man against Hill, and a majority of the southern men were against him. Many of them said they approved of Senator Hill, but that they were not for him for the presidency of the United States.

Cleveland's friends were particularly bitter against him, and they declared they were for anybody that the convention should name except Hill. It was therefore accepted as the general opinion of democratic members and senators that Hill could not be nominated, and again the question was put out, "Who will we have? Who have we got: Who is our most available man?"

There was much talk on this line and numerous men were discussed.

Gen. Palmer was recommended warmly as an available man; so was Gov. Boies of Iowa, ex-Gov. Gray of Indiana, and exGov. Campbell of Ohio. Four or five members thought that Don Dickinson, of Michigan, was available, and a few others recommended Vilas, of Wisconsin.

Some three or four thought that Gov. Pennoyer of Oregon, to a great extent an unknown man, might be a successful candidate. Gov. Pattison of Pennsylvania was placed in nomination by his friends, and Gov. Russell of Massachusetts had friends in this informal discussion.

A good deal of talk about the availability of Charles R. Ingersoll, of Connecticut, was indulged in, and any quantity of local favorites were passed and reviewed.

The end of the discussion, however, resulted in nothing serious. The western men concluded, and so did most of the southern men, that they would not have Hill, and that if the New York delegation did not support Cleveland the nominee should be taken from the west.

Of the western men discussed, and they were freely discussed, William R. Morrison was the favorite. It was alleged that Gov. Boies was a too new recruit to be taken up.

It was stated that he was on the stump for Blaine in 1884 and that he only joined the democratic party in 1886. He was considered too new a democrat to be made a presidential candidate.

Gen. Palmer had many friends, but the concensus of opinion was that his age barred him.

Campbell, of Ohio, was urged by his friends, but it was felt that his defeat last fall somewhat incapacitated him as an availability.

Ex-Gov. Gray of Indiana was thoroughly discussed. He has many friends among the democratic leaders, but it was felt that his republican record would be injurious to him, especially that portion of it which relates to the passage of the fifteenth amendment by the senate of Indiana when Gray was lieutenant-governor.

THE HOUSE WAS HAUNTED.

People in Kansas City See Strange Things.

A Ghost Appears and Hangs Himself in a House Once a Week, Always on Wednesday.

Kansas City, Mo., Jan. 18.—There lies in a small brick house on Twenty-third street, just west of old Grand avenue, a woman named Mrs. Albert Ogle, who is suffering from an attack of hysteria, brought about by the unexpected appearance of a visitor from the land of the dead.

She is still weak from her illness, and to-day related to the correspondent with some difficulty a most uncanny story of the cause of her suffering.

According to her story the house in which she lives with her husband and little child is haunted. She herself has seen the ghostly visitor and so has Mrs. Elliott, who formerly lived in the house.

Six weeks ago the Ogle family moved their chattels in an old brick house, a remnant of what once was a large building, but which was cut in two in order to allow an extension of Twenty-third street.

Mr. Ogle is a workingman, and is consequently but little at home during the day. Nothing unusual was noticed about the house when first occupied, and being strangers in the neighborhood the Ogles were not in condition to learn of its uncanny history. They were not long left in ignorance, however, for the Wednesday following their occupancy of the house, Mrs. Ogle heard coming from an inner room a noise which of itself startled her, and she was even more frightened when, running to the room to investigate the cause of the scuffling noise, she was unable to discover whence it came.

When the first feeling of fear had disappeared it dawned upon her mind that probably she had been deceived in the sound; that it might have been caused by some commotion outside the house. Nevertheless, that night she informed her husband upon his return from work of the strange sound she heard, and for the time being there the matter rested.

Nothing further occurred to recall the unpleasant experience until a week from the same day and at about the same hour, when a second and precisely similar noise was heard.

This time Mrs. Ogle was more rapid in her movements, and she gained entrance to the room whence came the noise.

The horrible sight which she there encountered all but dethroned her reason. There, on one side of the room and immediately in front of the doorway in which she stood, was a man hanging by a rope from the ceiling, his face depicting all the agony of death by strangulation.

Instantly the spectre vanished from her sight, neither falling to the floor nor ascending through the ceiling, but melting away as if formed of vapor.

Thoroughly frightened at the sight Mrs. Ogle fell to the floor in a swoon, and remained, as she says, for an hour. There was no one in the house but herself, her husband being at his work, and her little child on a visit to some friends.

That night when Mr. Ogle returned home his wife related to him her experience, but he discredited her story and said that he would himself carefully watch things. A watch, however, was of no avail, for never at night was there any sign of the ghostly visitor.

Things went on in their usual way until another week had passed, and again on Wednesday at the same hour the noise was heard, and this time Mrs. Ogle determined to run from the house, when she was arrested by her little girl, who ran screaming from the house crying that a man was there on a chair. Glancing behind her she was more than ever frightened to witness her most unwelcome visitor standing on a chair with a rope around his neck. Suddenly kicking the chair from under him, he fell like a condemned murderer through the trap of death. Mrs. Ogle fell upon a bed near by and went into hysterics, from which she is still suffering.

The history of the house, of which Mrs. Ogle is ignorant, is that the son of its builder hung himself in that room.

Republicans Making a Bomb for Harrison.

Foraker will Ignite the Fuse and Dance in Fiendish Glee When the Explosion Takes Place.

Columbus, Jan. 18.—(Special)—The Lincoln club banquet to be held here February 13, will surpass any republican gathering of the kind ever held in this city.

Many prominent men have agreed to be present, and, it is said, the sea turtle has been contracted for and has agreed not to die on the committee's hands.

The meeting will be significant also, from the fact that B. Harrison, president, will hear something drop on that occasion.

Foraker is to be toastmaster and Clarkson is to speak on the national campaign, and you can trust Foraker will rub it in on the administration. J. Sloat Fassett will discuss Tammany and Hon. John Sherman will not be invited to attend.

It will be an interesting meeting and all the good democratic papers of the country who love their party, should make arrangements to have stenographic reports.

ELECTRIC CARS IN TOLEDO.

To the Editor: A ride to the Air Line Junction on the electric cars might be one of the grandest trips around Toledo, for the length of the ride and more especially for the length of time it takes to complete the journey. I took the trip myself, and know whereof I speak, and ever since I have mightily petitioned the Lord "Oh, be merciful to me—a fool." But how can a person live in the world ten minutes and not be a fool; so many things to attract, and pull this way, and the other, until one feels like a squash in summer—almost ripe enough to pick—were the fool-killer to come our way. Well, we started for the Junction via the Western avenue electric car line. The officials of the car acted nobly under the circumstances, yet we were compelled to walk part way, ere our destination was reached, and I thought of the "Political Equality club," of Toledo, and wondered how long it would be before "suffrage woman" would wear "bloomers" as navigation might be improved upon, especially when snow was six to eight inches deep.

But the hour came for our return to the city, and we boarded the car with brave hearts at 7:30 p. m., went a short distance very slowly, met an out-going car, which, as our car was laboring very hard and unable to go without assistance, kindly took us back to the Junction.

The night was a stormy one, the changing, shifting web of the gently falling snow fell thick and fast, and the flakes sparkled in the electric lights like diamond dust. The streets and pavements seemed crusted with rare and radiant jewels, too soon to be trod upon by soiled and tired humanity; but such lovely scenes can't last always, even in Toledo, and after a little more courage on the part of the conductors they put two cars together and we started once more on our home trip, and like old Isaak Walton said about the strawberry, "doubtless God might have made a better berry, but doubtless God never did." There might be better conductors in Toledo, but it is very doubtful if there are. He collected our fares with punctuality and tried on one or two occasions to speak, but couldn't; his paper collar was too high. He was a perfect type of manliness, and we thought all that was needed to make the electric car line a success on Western avenue was the Chinaman's horse-ey and mull-y or a pully and pushy of some kind. ENGLISH AS SHE IS WROTE.

Because this leading evening paper published some plain and undeniable statements about the consequence to the New York Sun and its readers of its leaving the Associated Press, this morning it virtually challenges us to unfold a tale of the reason for its leaving—a tale that would put the Sun into total eclipse.

But as it did not do this until it had stated that the Associated Press in getting rid of the Sun had gotten "rid of a partner who is both a fool and a knave," with an accustomed magnanimity, when unjustly assailed, we prefer not to render justice for evil.

The cards appearing to-day in this and other Associated Press papers clearly show what is thought of the Sun's caper by others as well.—Colonel Elliott F. Shepard.

WAKE UP.

If you wake up in the morning with a bitter or bad taste in your mouth, Languor, Dull Headache, Despondency, Constipation, take Simmons Liver Regulator. It corrects the bilious stomach, sweetens the breath and cleanses the furred tongue. Children as well as adults sometimes eat something that does not digest well, producing Sour Stomach, Heartburn, Restlessness, or Sleeplessness—a good dose of Regulator will give relief. So perfectly harmless is this remedy that it can be taken by the youngest infant or the most delicate person without injury, no matter what the condition of the system may be. It can do no harm if it does no good, but its reputation for 40 years proves it never fails in doing good.

BROTHER ROBERT,

The Endearing Title by Which Rev. Dr. Fish

Expects Soon to Greet Bob Ingersoll —The Latter's Beliefs and Unbeliefs Considered.

At the morning services in St. John's M. E. church, yesterday, Rev. Dr. Fish, the pastor, discussed a recent talk in this city by Col. Robert G. Ingersoll, on his beliefs and unbeliefs. The church was filled, and the discourse, which was very interesting, was listened to attentively. At the request of a number of the congregation, the Bee gives the following synopsis of Dr. Fish's sermon:

Mark ix., 24.—"Lord, I believe; help thou mine unbelief."

Here, before the Lord Jesus, stands a man who is in much the same state of mind that Col. Robert Ingersoll is in to-day. He has his beliefs and his unbeliefs, and the latter trouble him. He prays to be helped out of them. The colonel seems to be in trouble about his also, for he never misses an opportunity to let the American public know what he has on his mind that he cannot see through. A week ago yesterday the poor, disturbed man gave an interviewer about one-third of a column of his vaporings, no doubt wishing in his heart that some one would be touched by his agitated condition and come to his relief.

Never did I go to a mourner on the anxious seat, anywhere, more readily than I would go to him this morning. I like Col. Ingersoll. His devotion to our beloved country in the time of her sore trial, and his outspoken and unflinching patriotism when our government needed the heart and help of every loyal man, shall always command my highest admiration and my sincerest respect. I also like his persistent antagonism to old established truths which he rejects as untrue, for I am persuaded he desires, if light can be given him, to receive it, and that he will never give up until he has either demolished the old standards or has been converted. You take one of these men who is a doubter, but who hides away in some obscure corner for fear it will render him unpopular if he thrusts his doubts upon the public, and you never can reach him, because you never know just where to find him. But Col. Ingersoll comes out like a man, even though it costs him his chances for the presidency.

In view of this I can simply regard him as a poor crying soul. He wants light. With one of the men of old, whose integrity he calls in question, his inmost heart is calling out, "Oh, that I knew where I might find him." In the interview to which I have referred he sums up, first,

His Unbeliefs.

He does not believe in the miraculous, the supernatural, nor the impossible. He does not tell us why he cannot believe in these, but contents himself by giving us a hint of what he deems them to be. For instance, he speaks of "the General Joshua story" and "the Jonah story," and with a flip soon goes through the incidents of Bible story which are to him so incredible. He does not believe in the miraculous, but if every marvelous story in every sacred book of the world was proved to be unreliable and untrue, it would not do away with the idea or the fact of the miraculous, for man himself is a miracle.

Ask the profoundest thinker on earth to-day, after all these centuries of advancement and improvement, if you can find him, to tell you the whole mystery of man, and he is soon driven to where nothing but a miracle greater by far than "the Jonah story," can help him out. He will begin by telling you that man consists of salts and earths and water. He will tell you how these are held together, how they operate upon one another, and how their constant waste is kept up.

Ask him how this combination came to think, and he will tell you that the brain is a wonderful galvanic groove with a three-fold machinery of nerves running through it, by which it easily gives its commands to every part of the body.

Ask him now the brain is enabled to do purposely what the voltaic battery is compelled to do mechanically, and he will tell you it is the result of organization. Now ask him how it is that these salts and earths and water, when thus combined in a man, know that they are a man, and how this galvanic battery knows that it thinks, and he is at once at his wit's end. Give him the salts and earths and oceans of the universe to choose from at his pleasure, and he cannot bring out of them a sentient being, even of the lowest form.

But somebody can, and so the miracle comes in. Your thinker can tell you how life works, but he cannot tell you how life is. But somebody can, and so again the miracle comes in. Call this somebody God, and the miracle is credible at once. Every real searcher after truth in the world knows that much. Once admit that there is an all-powerful personality somewhere, who existed before man or matter, and who by the word of his power caused them to be, and the miraculous will puzzle no one. How does Col. Ingersoll meet this fact? He first says, "It is impossible for a finite mind to conceive of an infinite personality," hence there can be no such being as a personal, intelligent God. Next he says, "It is impossible for the mind to conceive of something being made out of nothing," and hence everything must have been forever. But he overlooks entirely these facts, and they are the rock facts with which we first have to do, namely,

Something Is, and Somebody Exists.

Will he tell us whether the some one made the some thing or whether the some thing created the some one. Did the some thing that some one formed create the some one that could control it, and change it and give it laws which the some thing would at once recognize and obey? Ah, there is here a greater miracle than Christianity ever asked any man to believe.

But he does not believe in the miraculous.

He does not believe in the supernatural.

We step out of the realms of the miraculous, but wonders do not cease. We are yet above the natural, where we have more than the natural. There is a realm where we find that which nature unaided by some outside factor will not do. There are hundreds of things which nature, left alone, would never have accomplished. To have them, nature must be guided, and even commanded. Some thought-producing and thought-directing force must lay hold of her. Nature never would have produced a potato. Nature never would have produced a Baldwin apple, nor a Lawton blackberry. There would never have been a Marechal Neil rose nor a Catherine Mermitt rose in the universe if nature alone had been depended upon to create them. We are eating 50 different kinds of strawberries and raspberries and blackberries to-day that nature never knew she was capable of, until man spake to her and she obeyed his voice. There are stalks standing erect on the face of the earth to-day that would have crawled like serpents forever if nature only had heard their prayer. So there are beautiful flowers now kissed by the sun until blushes of every hue and color come out upon their cheeks which would have remained pale and wan forever under nature's touches.

This thought-directing force has consciously, purposely, intelligently entered this realm and captured nature like the Mexican lassoes a wild horse upon the plains, and commanded her to do its bidding. Nature would never have given the animals of the earth, man included, anything but corn and grass and roots to eat, and they would have fed upon them until they would have become like wild men of the forests, deteriorized and animalized in blood. This very matter of food has more to do with the character of the civilization than we often think. Cutaneous disease are common among the savage tribes who live on roots and browse. Terrible leprosies and loathsome ulcers are the lot of those who make beasts of themselves and roam the forests. To maintain health, strength and beauty humanity must eat cultivated products. We must take the crab and the sloe and give our children the Bellefleur and the plum. We must enter that realm of plant life where the leaves breathe after the manner of plants only, and cause them to blossom, and to breathe like blossoms and fruit after the manner of animals. All this is above nature. But he does not believe in the supernatural.

Neither does he believe in the impossible.

Well, who does? Nobody but an ignoramus or a fool. As Christians we do not believe that a bag can be filled with wisdom. We do not believe that a triangle can be made out of two straight lines, nor a square with five right angles. We do not believe that a circle can be touched in more than two points by a straight line, nor that a body of matter can be in two different places at the same time. But we do believe that the some one who made something can control it also, as easily as man can enter these realms of dark and hidden chambers of nature and accomplish what never would have been if he had not done so. We do believe that the some one who made a man that can swallow an oyster could also make a great fish that could swallow a man, and the Bible story says,

"God Prepared a Great Fish"

for that business. We do believe that the some one who formed the stars out of the same sort of material that he has formed human bodies which crumble to dust, can also cause the stars to crumble, or burn them up, if he prefer to do so, and could as easily command the sun to stand still, as to cause it to shine. We do not believe the impossible.

His Beliefs.

He does believe something. Thus he is making progress. For a long time he preached the doctrine of "I don't know," but now there are some things that are quite apparent to him, for surely he does not believe the incredible. Such a mind as he, would not believe anything unless it seemed to him to be true. He first said "I do not know," then he said, "I do not believe." Now he is a Protestant. He says, "some things which you teach the world are not true. I protest against them. There is no real ground for their belief." This at once puts him upon different ground, and he is compelled to say, "But I do believe some things. They are credible and worthy of my confidence."

Now I call that progress. He now believes some things that we believe and teach. He sees them to be true and most beautiful. After awhile he may be led to believe others that we teach most emphatically. He will, when he sees them clearly, I am certain. Perhaps some day when the fog is all cleared away, he will receive them all as true, and we shall yet have the supreme pleasure of taking him by the hand at the chancel rail of some Christian church and calling him Brother Robert.

He believes in the nobility of human nature. So do we. What is man? "Thou hast made him a little lower than God." A being who becomes the complement of all God's wonderful creation. A "son of God," who is to be his eternal companion and share His everlasting glory.

He believes in love and home. So do we. Love one another is taught in the Bible as nowhere else, and the beautiful homes of the world are found in our Christian civilization as nowhere else.

He believes in making wife and children happy. So do we. Women were slaves, and children were chattels, except where the teachings of Jehovah and the higher manifestation of Jesus Christ opened the eyes of the people to see their real worth and lift them up to their proper place in the scale of humanity. Where are the charities and the humanities of the world except in Christendom?

He believes in giving to others the same rights you claim for yourselves. So do we. The golden rule of Jesus and the teachings of his word would go even further than that. "If thine enemy hunger, feed him."

He believes in free thought and reason. So do we. The colleges and universities of the country are in the main supported by the gifts of Christian people.

He has hope for the whole human race. Hope always refers to the future. It is the to-morrow thought of the universe. If the human race has it better in the future then the human race must first have a future.

He is making progress for he must see clearly that such a time has never yet been known in this world when what would happen to one would come alike to all, and that all, and always good. Does he now believe in a future state where all these grand possibilities can come to pass? Does he at last reject only the word of God? Marshal Duroc was telling a very improbable story to Napoleon. The great Emperor shrugged his shoulders as if he found it hard to believe it, when Duroc insisted that it was true. "Ah," said Napoleon, "some men are capable of believing everything but the Bible."

REV. D. W. P. BLISS

Discusses the Question of Christian Socialism.

Comments on the Evils of the Times—The Mission of the Christian Social Union.

Rev. D. W. P. Bliss occupied the pulpit at Trinity church yesterday morning, and to a large congregation preached an eloquent sermon on Christian Socialism. He spoke especially upon the aims and methods of the American Christian Social union, an Episcopal organizaton.

He told how the Christian Social union was first organized in Oxford university, England, and rapidly spread over that country, taking in all classes of churchmen, and making a great crusade in the slums of East London.

The union has now been organized throughout the United States, with Bishop Huntington as president of the American union, and Mr. Avery P. Wheeler, of New York, chairman, of the executive committee. The principles of the union are to apply Christianity to the social and economic difficulties of the times and to promote the glory of God.

"I come not here as a missionary for this society," said he, "but I stand as a minister of God and declare that He has a social remedy for us. I need not say much of the needs, we see them everywhere. The scholars of the world are studying this social problem and from those I get the statistics. One student sates that that there are 3,000,000 practical paupers in the United States. In this country there are 1,000,000 men habitually unemployed and there are 1,000,000 children under school age at work in the shops and factories.

"Some people think a cure can be effected simply by the abolishment of the saloon, but it is not a fact that poverty is mainly the result of drink. Intemperance is more often the result of poverty. In East London it is estimated that 38 per cent. of the population are paupers, and here where hundreds of cases have been examined into, only a small per cent. of the population were found to be paupers from the result of drink.

"You say that they are thriftless. If they are it is not their fault, because God has failed to endow them with the power and brightness of others. Because you are strong you should not take advantage of the weak, and these are the ones who are especially in need of your help."

Mr. Bliss gave numerous examples of the curse of poverty and how it easily led to drink and crime. He considered that a large part of the social and economic difficulties of the day are caused by the mistaken idea that has held the people of this country and that is "every man for himself."

In this connection he dwelt briefly on the wage question, illustrating the slavery of the workingman and also the slavery of the manufacturer, who on account of the competition is compelled to get his labor for the lowest price possible. It is for this reason that women are supplanting men in the factories, boys are taking the place of the women, and girls the places of the boys.

"These people need more than charity, they need justice and a chance to work and be independent."

Mr. Bliss made a strong plea for Christians to take more interest in the politics of this government and rescue them from the degradation to which they have fallen and apply the principles of Christ to the caucus and the ballot box.

"The only solution of the social problem is the law of Jesus Christ, and by no other name can this country be saved."

Dr. Bliss spoke yesterday afternoon at Y. M. C. A. hall and at Grace Episcopal church in the evening. This evening he will deliver an address in Memorial hall annex on "Work and Wages, a Study of Facts."

REV. FATHER BURNS,

Who Was an Altar Boy to the Late Cardinal Manning, Speaks of That Great Catholic.

Rev. Father Burns, of St. Joseph's church, was at one time altar boy to the late Cardinal Manning and had a 20-years' acquaintance with him. Consequently he is well able to speak knowingly of the life and character of that great personage, and his address last evening at St. Frances de Sales church, in which he took Cardinal Manning's life as his subject, was heard with profound interest.

Henry Edward Manning was born July 15, 1808, at Tottenridge, in Hertfordshire, England. In 1840 he was appointed archdeacon of Chichester. Up to this time he was a consistent high-church Anglican, though, like many Oxford divines, inclined to Puseyism; but in 1851 the decision of the courts in the noted Graham case, which seemed to Manning and others to claim for the crown authority over a purely doctrinal question on the subject of baptism, left him, he thought, no alternative but to abandon his preferment and become a member of the Roman Catholic church.

Father Burns relates many interesting incidents in the life of the cardinal and gave the large congregation assembled a vivid idea of his noble character and great worth.

Sad indeed will be the sight in Poland this year with all the women dressed in black. A century ago Poland lost its independence, and the notion has been started that it would be appropriate for the women to wear mourning all this year for the event. Beyond the mere peculiarity of observing a centennial in that way, such expression of popular sentiment may be attended with important political results. The masculine Polacks will see that the women are sincere in their grief, their hearts may be fired anew with the principle of "liberty or death." They may shake off the lethargy of despair for the more verile attitude of defiance. If anything will arouse a people it is women in mourning for freedom lost.

BACCILLI IN BLOOD.

Recent experiments as read before the last Congress of Surgeons at Berlin, leave no doubt that the true way to CLEAR THE SYSTEM OF MICROBI is through the pores of the skin. It has been found that a remedy which kills the Microbi will also destroy the life of the patient; but it has also been found that the Microbi can be forced out through the skin, and it is in this way that S.S.S. relieves the system of poison.

THE YEAR JUST CLOSED

Was Rough on Insurance Companies.

The Loss Estimated at $140,000—Over Forty-Six Companies Quit Business—Insurance Agent John Kountz Talks on the Subject.

"The year just closed has been one of the most disastrous and unprofitable to insurance corporations that the business has known in 10 years," remarked Gen. John Kountz to a Bee. "The very best of risks went, and the loss has not been confined to any particular locality on property, but has been general. I don't pretend to account for it, and I don't know as there is any way to figure the matter out, unless we say it was an unlucky year and let it go at that, hoping that next year will bring less conflagration. However, that is one of the uncertainties of the business; one year a company may do a big business and prosper as it never prospered before, and the next year may come with fires like 1891, and down goes the company surplus and all. I was looking over one of my insurance journals the other day and came on to a statement showing the number and amount of assets of companies that had retired from business, each year in the last 10 years. I don't mean they retired to spend the wealth they had made but threw up the sponge on account of bad business, big losses, etc. In 1882, 24 companies retired with total assets of $7,895,182; in 1883, 14 with assets, $5,336,114; in 1884, 14, assets, $4,982,828; in 1885, 13, assets, $3,774,984. Business getting better, you see. In 1886 only five gave up their charters, with total assets of $2,011,239. Now comes 1887 with more big losses, as 24 companies quit business, having total assets amounting to $5,163,611. The next year 18 companies gave up with estimated assets amounting to $7,566,395. During 1889, 15 companies went up with $2,134,587 assets. Now comes 1890, which was a most disastrous year. During this period 22 companies succumbed to bad business and quit, the amount of the assets being $8,166,434. This year, as you see, turned more companies out of business than any preceding year since 1882. Basing the future on history of the past, it was but consistent to expect that 1891 would be one of good results and redeem the misfortunes of 1890. Well, as I said before it was the most disastrous of the ten, as this list of companies, that retired during 1891 will give evidence."

ENTERTAINMENTS.

My Jack at the People's—Lydia Thompson—Incog.

The People's theater has an unusually good attraction this week in My Jack. The play is an interesting, well devised and well-written spectacular melodrama of the type of Youth and The Soudan, the sort of play in which in the first two acts the hero gets involved, through the machinations of a villain in very serious difficulties, goes out in the third act to active service in one of the numerous small wars which England always has on hand, for the convenience of her dramatists, is seen in Afghanistan, or South Africa, or the Soudan in the fourth act, covering himself with glory and unraveling the villain's plots, and in the fifth act comes back to "England home and beauty," and amid much waving of the Union Jack while the band plays Rule Brittania. Here are materials of which the English playwright can always make a stirring play and My Jack has added merit in a certain lightness and "go" injected into it by the pen of George Hoey.

Lydia Thompson.

Lydia Thompson always pleases because she always has something good and presents it in such an excellent way.

She has demonstrated time and time again her ability to brighten and make sparkle lines that were in themselves dull, and now has proven that in comedy she is capable of much finer work than she had been engaged in.

That popular young comedian, Mr. Alf Hampton, is securing praises everywhere from the public and critics, for the artistic manner in which he supports Miss Thompson. They will be at the opera house to-morrow night.

Incog.

The Wheeler opera house will present as its attraction next Thursday America's representative light comedian, Charles Dickson and the Geo. W. Lederer model company in the comedy success of the season, Incog, a three-act comedy on the style of The Private Secretary and Mr. Wilkinson's Widows. The authoress, Mrs. Ronaldo Pacheco, is the social and literary leader of the Pacific coast and wife of ex-Gov. Pacheco of California. The play has made a tremendous success wherever it has been presented and opens in New York the 29th of February for an unlimited run.

INFERIOR GOODS.

The only safe way for purchasers is to insist on having the genuine article, and not allow themselves to be swindled by having plasters said to be "just as good," or "containing superior ingredients," imposed upon them. These are only tricks to sell inferior goods that no more compare with Allcock's Porous Plasters than copper does with gold. One trial of Allcock's Porous Plasters will convince the most skeptical of their merits.

The eminent Henry A. Mott, jr., Ph.D., F. C. S., late government chemist, certifies:

"My investigation of Allcock's Porous Plaster shows it to contain valuable and essential ingredients not found in any other plaster, and I find it superior to and more efficient than any other plaster."

Ask for Allcock's, and let no solicitation or explanation induce you to accept a substitute.

Considerable interest is shown in the proposed use of fibrelia—made from flax straw—as a substitute for cotton. By a process the straw is reduced to a short staple, very closely resembling cotton and wool, and, it is claimed, well adapted for use, and when so used is said to add materially to the value of the product. It is the opinion of experts who have investigated the matter, that woolen and cotton manufacturers are among those to be especially advantaged by the article, it being adapted readily to their use. The fibrous manufacturers are confined to two processes differing entirely, in that one uses short staples, or cotton and wools, while the other utilizes long staples like flax, hemp, silk and jute. Fibrelia, in a word, is flax, coverted from a long staple to a short one, adapted for use on the present cotton and wool machinery.

A professor of John Hopkins university has perfected a machine that will rule one million lines to the inch.

MICHIGAN BREVITIES.

Four old citizens of Paw Paw succumbed to the grip in one day.

The Sultan Coal company's plant at Centerville has been destroyed by fire.

The $6,000 residence of Fred Chamberlain, at Lawton, has been destroyed by fire.

Mrs. T. L. Warren leaped from a second-story window at Coldwater during a fit of temporary insanity.

C. G. Baker, a saw-mill smploye at Ironwood, fell from a fuel elevator shaft into the furnace and was cremated.

A large number of human skulls have been sold among old bones by a Detroit junk dealer to the Michigan carbon works.

The congregation of the German Evangelical St. John's church at Muskegon will dedicate a new church building very soon.

A warrant for the arrest of Superintendent Watson, of the Bell telephone system at Kalamazoo, has been issued, charging him with embezzling $2,500.

A year ago Silas Coulter, a wealthy farmer of Sault Ste Marie, was murdered, and his son was arrested and acquitted of the charge. He recently joined a church and has confessed the crime.

A LANDLORD'S BLUFF.

"Proprietors of country hotels sometimes ring in desperate bluffs to make their houses appear a little higher-toned than they really are," remarked a traveling man at the Nicollet the other day to a Minneapolis Tribune writer, and then he went on to illustrate: "It was at a little station in the southern part of the state," said he. "I had run in there just before noon and, of course, was booked for dinner at the only hotel in the place. I was shown into the dining-room somewhat late by the proprietor, a burly Irishman, who, after seating me, started in to do the grand thing by waiting on me himself. 'What have you got?' I asked. 'Breakfast bacon and roast dook,' he replied with a flourish. Roast duck—that isn't so bad, I thought—and so I told him I would take some of that. He was very much disconcerted for a minute, then he pulled himself together, laid his hand on my shoulder, and said very confidentially: 'Ah, you'd betther have th' baacon. All the byes do be takin' it.' And so I made a meal on greasy bacon and soggy potatoes. As a matter of fact there wasn't a roast duck within five miles of the house. I had simply called his bluff."

THE GENTLEMAN HIMSELF.

On one of his latest visits to a certain country house in a Scottish country, Archbishop Tait went alone to the postoffice to send a telegram to his brother. He wrote it out, The Archbishop of Canterbury to Sheriff Tait," and handed it in. The sceptical old postmaster read it aloud in contemptuous tones, "Archbishop of Canterbury," and added, "Wha may ye be that taks this cognomen?" The archbishop, taken aback, remained silent for a moment. The morning was cold, and he had a woolen comforter wrapped around his neck; but, on second view, the postmaster though he looked more respectable than on a first, and added, "Maybe ye're the gentleman himsel'." Tait replied modestly, "For want of a better, I am." On which the good old Scot hastened to apologize for his first suspicion of impasture, adding, "I might have seen you were rather consequental about the legs." Then he added words of cheer, which Tait said truly were vitally Scotch, "I have a son in London, a lad in a shop; and he gaed to hear ye preach one day, and ye's verra weel satisfeed."

A NEW DISINFECTANT.

The manufacture of a new disinfectant and deordorant called Sauridon has been commenced at Maryhill, England. It is a residual product of an uncommon kind of blackstone shale, which is composed of animal and vegetable remains, is remarkably light and yields a large proportion of heavy volatile oil. The oil is extracted by distillation, and the residual product is reduced to grains of different sizes, varying from a fine powder to the size of a pea. The powder is claimed to have an instantaneous effect upon obnoxious matter, while also being tasteless and colorless and harmless to all animal life.

A WONDERFUL FOX.

The Japanese believe in a species of fox which, if it lives to be 50 years old without having been chased by a dog, transforms itself into a beautiful woman. This same fox, if it lives to the age of 100 years, gains some new powers, among which is that of becoming a wonderful wizard. When it reaches the age of 1,000 years it becomes a celestial fox with nine golden-colored tails and has the power of going to heaven whenever it chooses.

BROWNING'S COURTESY.

On one occasion Poet Browning's son had hired a room in a neighboring house in which to exhibit his pictures, and during the temporary absence of the artist Mr. Browning was doing the honors to a roomful of fashionable friends. He was standing near the door when an unannounced visitor made her appearance. Mr. Browning immediately shook hands with her, when she exclaimed: "Oh, I beg your pardon, but please, sir, I'm the cook. Mr. Barrett asked me to come and see his pictures." "And I'm very glad to see you," said Mr. Browning with ready courtesy. "Take my arm and I will show you around."

CHECK AND CHECK.

I wrote a poem to my love,
In all a lover's tender duty;
I said the flowers, the stars above
Were nothing to her grace and beauty.
I praised her eyes, her face, her form,
Breathed out my very soul in passion,
In language which perhaps was warm,
But certainly was quite the fashion.

Then laid it at the feet of her—
That is, I had it "typed" and sent it
By an express boy messenger,
To show her that I really meant it.
But when the answer came—ah me!
It struck me dumb and dazed and stupid;
She sent my poem back, you see!
It was indeed a check—on Cupid.

At first I thought my neck I'd slit,
For drowning's generally risky;
But changed my mind, my pipe I lit,
And filled a glass of Irish whisky—
Which rendering my perceptions keen,
I said, "Love's done for, evidently;
I'll send it to a magazine,
Say, Temple Bar of dear old Bentley!"

So scorning love, and filled with hope,
I printed it to save correction,
Enclosing a stamped envelope
In the event of its rejection.
And then I waited, as before,
The fortune of my little poem.
(O publisher! O editor!
Your little ways how well I know 'em!)

'Tis vain to thirst your blood to drink,
'Tis vain for your "reply" to hanker,
For authorship's a ship, I think,
That needs a deal of hope for anchor.
And so I hoped and hoped, like most,
Until, one summer morn inviting,
There came a Temple Bar by post,
A letter in a well-known writing.

I seized the book, the string I snipt,
Opened the letter, cut a caper—
'Twas not, 'twas not my manuscript,
But a much sweeter bit of paper.
There was no need to slit my neck,
I still was free from Marriage-Ring-Land,
Yet Bentley, too, had sent a check,
But his—was on the Bank of England!

—Frederic E. Weatherly, in Temple Bar.

REDEEMED.

Only a dying horse that lay
Hard by the walk one August day
Panting his feeble life away.

Sunstruck, and he was lying there
At noon, with not a stir of air
From up or down or anywhere.

Slowly he breathed in gasps and groans,
Couching his bruised and battered bones
Upon the cruel cobble stones.

For years along the dusty road
He'd pulled his master's heavy load
Urged on by brutal curse and goad.

Pitied and friended now by none
Because his usefulness was done
He lay there dying in the sun.

His twitching flesh was torture wrung,
Foam to his quivering nostrils hung,
From parted lips lolled out his tongue.

Feebly at last he raised his head,
Opened his eyes for help that plead,
Struggled to rise, and fell back dead.

And I, with shame for all my race,
Beheld a throng surround the place,
And pity on no human face.

I turned away, debased, defiled,
When lo, a chubby little child,
On whom its mother fondly smiled,

Broke from her tender grasp away,
Ran where the poor dead creature lay,
And scattered there a cheap boquet!

—George Horton in Chicago Herald.

McALLISTER'S IDEA.

Ward McAllister says that "Pre-eminence in the social order of our country must be founded on one of these three: Birth and riches, personal merit with income, political power with wealth." After a careful reading of this sentence any man who wants to get on in Mr. McAllister's society will at once set about getting riches, income or wealth.—Post-Dispatch.

WEARY MOTHERS

LOOK AT THIS.

Are these not healthy and bright children? Their appearance does not misrepresent them; they are both healthy and bright. They are the son and daughter of Mr. J. P. Wiley, of Dorchester, Mass., and he has an interesting story to tell in regard to them. The story is as follows:

"In 1885 my wife, accompanied by my little boy, at that time 11 months old, was visiting relatives in Scranton, Penna. The little fellow was suffering untold agony cutting his teeth. My wife was told to try Dr. Hand's Teething Lotion. The effect was magical. It did not supply the child, as most remedies of this character do; it simply soothed the pain of the burning and aching gums. I might write a volume, had I the time, praising this remedy, and then not express my feelings or do justice, it is simply marvellous. After our return to Boston she wanted another bottle, but I found that it was unknown in this city. I corresponded with Dr. Hand, and received in reply a sample of each of his remedies. I used them on both my children, recommended them to all my friends, and have yet to find the person who, after using the remedies, especially Teething Lotion and Colic Cure, that could not praise them. People may say, and have said to me: 'Oh, there must be something in that Teething Lotion that affects a child's whole.' In reply to this, I will say I have two children, a boy and girl, who have been treated with Teething Lotion since time of beginning to end of teething, and I challenge any person to furnish two with any clearer brains. I cheerfully recommend them to parents who love their little ones."

Dr. Ottman will visit Toledo, Saturday, Jan. 30.

Consultation and Examination Free and Strictly Confidential in the Private Parlor of the Burnett House from 10 a. m. to 9 p. m., one day only.

The Doctors describe the different diseases better than the sick can themselves. It is a wonderful gift for any one to possess. Their diagnostic powers have created wonders throughout the country.

The France Medical and Surgical Institute of Columbus, Ohio, is the only Medical Institute in the State Incorporated with a Capital of $300,000.00.

FRANCE MEDICAL AND SURGICAL INSTITUTE,

38 & 40 W. Gay St., one block N. of State House, Columbus, O. Incorporated, 1886. Capital, $300,000.

DRS. FRANCE AND OTTMAN, of New York, the well known and successful Specialists in Chronic Diseases and Diseases of the Eye and Ear, on account of their large practice in Ohio, have established the FRANCE MEDICAL INSTITUTE, where all forms of Chronic, Nervous and Private Diseases will be successfully treated on the most Scientific principles. They are ably assisted by a full corps of eminent Physicians and Surgeons, each one being a well known specialist in his profession

CANCER positively cured without pain or use of the knife, by a new method.

IMPORTANT TO LADIES.—DR. FRANCE, after years of experience, has discovered the greatest cure known for all diseases peculiar to the sex. Female diseases positively cured by the new remedy, OLIVE BLOSSOM. The cure is effected by home treatment. Entirely harmless and easily applied. Consultation Free and Strictly Confidential. Correspondence promptly answered.

YOUNG MEN—Who have become victims of solitary vice, that dreadful and destructive habit, which annually sweeps to an untimely grave thousands of young men of exalted talent and brilliant intellect, may call with confidence.

DRS. FRANCE AND OTTMAN, after years of experience, have discovered the greatest cure known for weakness in the back and limbs, involuntary discharges, impotency, general debility, nervousness, languor, confusion of ideas, palpitation of the heart, timidity, trembling, dimness of sight, or giddiness, diseases of the head, throat, nose, or skin, affections of the liver, lungs, stomach, or bowels—those terrible disorders arising from the solitary vice of youth—and secret practices, blighting their most radiant hopes or anticipations, rendering marriage impossible. Take one candid thought before it is too late. A week or month may place your case beyond the reach of hope. Our method of treatment will speedily and permanently cure the most obstinate case, and absolutely restore perfect manhood.

TO MIDDLE-AGED MEN.—There are many from the age of 30 to 60 who are troubled with frequent evacuations of the bladder, often accompanied by a slight burning or smarting sensation, weakening the system in a manner the patient cannot account for. On examination of the urinary deposits, a ropy sediment will be found, or the color will be a thin or milkish hue. There are many men who die of this difficulty, ignorant of the cause, which is a second stage of seminal weakness. We will guarantee a perfect cure in all such cases, and a healthy restoration of the genito-urinary organs.

DISEASES OF WOMEN.—We have a special department, thoroughly organized, and devoted exclusively to the treatment of diseases of women. Every case consulting our specialists, whether by letter or in person, is given the most careful and considerate attention. Important cases, and we get few which have not baffled the skill of all the home physicians) have the benefit of a full council of skilled specialists. In treatment of diseases peculiar to females, our success has been marked, over two-thirds of our patients being ladies, old, young, married, single, rich and poor. Our method is entirely free from objectionable features of the general practitioner, namely, "Local treatment." We seldom find it necessary. We prepare remedies, constitutional and local, as the case demands, and instruct ladies how to treat themselves.

MARRIAGE.—Married persons, or young men contemplating marriage, aware of physical weakness, loss of procreative powers, impotency, or any other disqualification, speedily restored.

PRIVATE DISEASES.—Blood Poison, Venereal Taint, Gleet, Stricture, Seminal Emissions, Loss of Sexual Power, Weakness of Sexual Organs, Want of Desire in Male or Female, whether from imprudent habits of youth or sexual habits of mature years, or any cause that debilitates the sexual functions, speedily and permanently cured. Consultation free and strictly confidential. Absolute cures guaranteed. Medicines sent free from observation to all parts of the United States.

EPILEPSY, OR FITS.—Positively cured by a new and never-failing method. Testimonials furnished.

FREE EXAMINATION OF THE URINE.—Each person applying for medical treatment should send or bring from 2 to 4 ounces of urine (that passed first in the morning preferred), which will receive a careful chemical and microscopical examination, and if requested a written analysis will be given.

Persons ruined in health by unlearned pretenders, who keep trifling with them month after month, giving poisonous and injurious compounds, should apply immediately. Delays are dangerous.

WONDERFUL CURES Perfected in old cases which have been neglected or unskillfully treated. No experiments or failures. Parties treated by mail or express, but where possible, personal consultation is preferred. Curable cases guaranteed. No risks incurred.

Cases and correspondence confidential. Treatment sent C. O. D. to any part of U. S. List of 130 questions free. Address, with postage, DR. FRANCE. Nos. 38 and 40 W. Gay St., Columbus, O.

NEUHAUSEL BRO'S

FROM PLYMOUTH TO WARSAW.

During the past year Indiana's practical temperance institute of Plymouth, Ind., conducted by Dr. T. A. Borton, has gained considerable prominence among all classes of people, especially those who want to see practical work done in the way of reforming and helping our unfortunate fellow men.

This institute, that has been so successfully conducted at Plymouth for the cure of the whisky and morphine habits, has recently been formed into a stock company and removed to Warsaw, Ind., where they have commodious and permanent buildings in which they can take care of the rapidly increasing number of their patients.

Dr. Borton, Plymouth's respected citizen, is to be congratulated in securing the help and co-operation of his earnest and hard-working associates in this noble work, and Warsaw, the well-known and delightful resort, will no doubt soon become known as a noted rival to the Keeley Institute at Dwight, Ill.

CARD OF THANKS.

We, the undersigned, do hereby express our thanks to all our friends, and especially to the Robert Blum and Readman lodges, I. O. O. F., for their kind assistance to our father and son, Jacob Bollin, in time of his death and burial, and also for the floral decorations sent us.

ABOUT HUSBANDS.

Johnson was right. I don't agree to all
The solemn dogmas of the rough old stager,
But very much approve what one may call
The minor morals of the "Ursa Major."

Johnson was right. Although some men adore
Wisdom in women, and with wisdom cram her,
There isn't one in ten but thinks far more
Of his own grub than of his spouse's grammar.

I know it is the greatest shame in life;
But who among them (save, perhaps, myself)
Returning home, he asks his wife
What beef—not books—she has upon the shelf.

Though Greek and Latin be the lady's boast,
They're little valued by her loving mate;
The kind of tongue that husbands relish most
Is modern, boiled and served upon a plate.

Or, if, as fond ambition may command,
Some home-made verse the happy matron show him,
What mortal spouse but from her dainty hand
Would sooner see a pudding than a poem?

Young lady—deep in love with Tom or Harry—
'Tis sad to tell you such a tale as this;
But here's the moral of it: do not marry,
Or, marrying, take your lover as he is—

A very man—with something of the brute,
(Unless he proves a sentimental noddy),
With passions strong and appetite to boot,
A thirsty soul within a hungry body.

A very man—not one of nature's clods—
With human feelings, whether saint or sinner,
Endowed, perhaps, with genius from the gods,
But apt to take his temper from his dinner.
—John G. Saxe.
